Hello!
I have checked through the book and cannot find any copyrights. Is says the compiler is Lucy Dunlevy Keneagy, Publisher is Walter John Van Derslice Chicago Illinois, April 1922.
It also says that The work of collecting names and dates, was begun in 1914 by Leonora McCord Goes. Also there is a note on page 7 saying the above extracts are from the Genealogical History of the Dunlevy Family. Part Third. Published in 1901.
There is a picture on page 42 of Walter John Van Derslice, it says he is son of Luella Dunlevy and John S Van Derslice Grandson of James Garrell Dunlevy.
So what do you think? Can I copy this?

Anthony Dunlevy, the youngest of nine sons of ____________ Dunlevy of Ireland born 1735 came to America from northern Ireland about 1745. He was preceded by one of his brothers who was killed by the Indians, as Anthony learned at Baltimore.

Anthony Dunlevy settled at Winchester, Virginia, in what was then Frederick County, at the year 1745.

About 1760 he married Hannah White, daughter of Dr. Robert White and Margaret Hoge. On or about 1761 his son Francis Dunlevy was born.

In 1772 Anthony Dunlevy 2nd, moved from Winchester Va. to Western Virginia, where he remained until after the Revolutionary was.

Descendants of Anthony Dunlevy Second and Hanna White

There were seven children, four sons and three daughters.

1. Judge Francis Dunlevy married Mary Craig.
2. Daniel Dunlevy married Martha Yocum.
3. John Dunlevy married Cassie McNema.
4. Anthony Dunlevy 1772-1856 married Mrs. Kezia 1764-1841, Garrell, Miller.
5. Hannah Dunlevy married John White.
6. Naomi Dunlevy married Robert Stewart.
7. Rebecca Dunlevy married Henry Miller.

Francis Dunlevy in his application for a pension of October 3, 1832 states that in July 1777 he served as a substitute, in the militia at Fort Pitt, for his father, Anthony Dunlevy 2nd, who had served the first half of a month, for which time he had been drafted, during the revolutionary war.

Copied from the original letter of Francis Dunlavy to his Nephew James G. Dunlavy.

Lebanon, April, 14, 1934
Dear Nephew:

Yours of the 20th last month came to hand yesterday and I was pleased to receive it and hear of your welfare. This is the first certain account I have had of you since you left Bond County, altho I have written to you several times but not knowing how to direct my letters suppose none of them have reached you. I have the melancholy news to inform you that your cousin, John C. Dunlavy died suddenly in this place about three months ago. His health had been precarious many years but he had still pursued the practice of Physic at Hamilton, twenty miles west of this and as his business there was extensive and laborious he had removed to Lebanon with a view to curtail his practice in hopes of recruiting his health, but alas he had barely set himself down when he was called from all the cares and troubles of this life. He left a widow and two infant daughters to mourn and feel his loss. I have been unwell myself for upwards of a year past, but much better since the weather became warm, yet still very weak. My children and grandchildren are generally well. I have not kept house for upwards of five years and live in Lebanon with my son Howard. Your cousin James Harvey Dunlavy removed to the state of Mississippi some two years ago, where he practices Physic and has had much success and good business but had a severe spell of fever of that country last summer, which had nearly carried him off. Since the death of my son John C. Dunlavy, Howard wrote him inviting him to return to this place but he declined coming and intends remaining there. He lives in the interior of the state and hundred miles perhaps easterly from Vicksburgh, which lies on the M. River. I have heard nothing particular from you friends in Brown county for several years. We had the cholera in this place last summer. It was a distressing time with us, although not so bad as it has been in other places in this town, which is small (it has not increased much since you last saw it) There were more than twenty cases of death, and about half that number who had the disorder and recovered. It was in various parts of the country, and the afflicted died in about the same proportion, that is two out of three. Whether it will return again this summer, the Lord only knows. Several persons died within a few doors of our house altho none of us had it. Several of the children of your uncle Robert Stuart live in Indiana on or near the Ohio river about 100 miles by land below Lewisville. John and Hannah White are still living on the Sacator about ten miles above the mouth. People complain much of hard times here, money is very scarce and what is in circulation is of doubtful character being the paper of the banks which are feared to be doubtful, trade has been brisk for several years, particularly in pork and flower (flour). But our traders have nearly all made money, having purchased in the latter part of summer and early in the fall, while money was plenty and prices high, but before they got their produce shipped to markets prices had fallen, those who bought on credit as far as I can hear have all failed. You say as I understand you that the lands in your County have not been offered for sail yet.

There has been a proposition in Congress for many years to reduce the price of public lands which if it should succeed must be much to the advantage of your part of the country, but I think it doubtful whether it will ever succeed. I have a very imperfect knowledge of your part of the country, and had you not spoken of the lands in your County not being bought I would have supposed you were in the military Bounty Tract, but presume you must be above it. I have formerly been in what is now Illinois and Missouri as high as that river, but from the mouth of the Illinois river to Michigan was then all in the possession of the various tribes of Indians. It is almost 40 years since I was there. I have some small maps of your state but they are very imperfect. But I must cease writing as I feel myself much fatigued.

May the Lord bless you and yours, both in time and eternity.

Adieu affectionately
Francis Dunlavy.

James G. Dunlavy
P.S. Your father is, or was a few weeks ago living at Pleasant Hill, in Kentucky.

F.D.

Francis Dunlevy of Lebanon, Ohio, oldest son of Anthony Dunlevy 2nd, served in the Revolutionary war. He was sent to the legislature two terms to represent the Northwest Territory, and was a member of the convention of 1802, which framed the constitution of Ohio. He was also a member of the first legislature of the State after Ohio was admitted, and he held the office of presiding Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the first circuit for fourteen years.

Dear Cousin,

Yours of the 22nd ult., came to hand a few days since which was really very unexpected. I had come to the conclusion that you were either dead or was fearful that I might pay you a visit, but to my great satisfaction you inform me of your health and still a desire to see me, provided I will come or rather go and see you, for not a word is said about you paying me a visit. If you would come here you could see four of us to wit, Matilda, Jay, William, James and myself. But I have no reason to expect, for if it takes you eight months to write a letter of ten minutes time, I conclude it would take some years to get ready for a journey of some hundreds of miles, but enough of this irony.

I was truly sorry to learn of the death of your sister as I was making calculations to see her when I paid you a visit, but He who removed her does all things right. We too must soon obey the same mandate, and if we are only prepared should be content. I was surprised that you did not mention my father (Daniel Dunlavy) in either of your letters. Cousin Howard wrote me not long since that he was still living in Shakertown, Ky. This induced me to answer yours sooner than I should have done, hoping that you will shake off your dotage and answer this at your earliest convenience. If father is still living it might be to my advantage to know it, I mean in a pecuniary point of view.

I am thankful for your solicitation to go to Illinois to practice law, but fear that surrounding circumstances will prevent me from complying with your request. I am not practicing law at present. I am living on a farm. I soon found that I could not support my family at the practice here, as two day term is commonly the length of our circuit courts. Consequently I do not pass myself as a lawyer. I have plead but one case in court since I came here and gained that to the astonishment of the bystanders and lawyers. It was a case of importance to the school fund of this county. If I have any talent it is to plead law, but if I can obtain a support without pleading I think I will. I am somewhat conscientious about it, however I may establish a law office some day in our county seat. I am not stout and this induced me to read law. If my wife's people with that of my own had not have followed me to this country I might have come to your place to practice law as this country is a poor place for lawyers. I now think of paying you a visit in the spring, and by that time I can tell better what I shall do. I will now give you a history of my brothers, religion and politics, but perhaps I have done this in some of my other letters. I shall commence with the oldest. Francis of Putman County, Iowa, an ultra whig, a Methodist, it is said when he is aroused in debate that his looks will so confuse his opponent that he gains his point. John, of Lawrence County, Iowa, is a democrat. I fear skeptical in religion. Is a very high minded independent man. Anthony is dead. Was a Methodist and a democrat. He was the best looking of the family and was a man of superior talent. He supposed that he saw you once on the National Road, the other side of Indianapolis in Indiana. Daniel of Clay County, Iowa, is a Methodist Preacher. A democrat. He has more words than thought, but passes with the mass as a man with considerable intellect.

William of this county is a Reformer or Campbellite Preacher. A whig. He is a very unassuming man and universally beloved and can outpreach any Campbellite I ever heard. If he had been educated and had been a Methodist or Presbyterian he would be useful. He has a superior gift for preaching. I am the next. A Methodist and a democrat. The ugliest and some say the triflingest one of the family. James D, of this county is the youngest. A democrat. Not a member of any church. Is a man of few words and always of good sense, Wishes to accumulate a great deal of this world's goods. The whole family have dark hair. Will you give your religion, politics, complexion, etc.

I would be glad to see you and will if we both live until next spring, if no unforeseen event occurs. I have never seen any of the name except our family, your father and cousin Howard. I was much pleased with him. He has a great many peculiar ideas. I did not like cousin Rebecca Rigdon. I thought she was selfish. I have boys to wit:

James, John Wesley, and Anthony Howard.

I commenced to write a few words asking you to inform me as soon as convenient if my father was living when you was in Shakertown and have spun out my letter to some length, no doubt uninteresting. Health is good. Healthy country. Plentiful country, at fair prices.

May the smiles of kind heaven attend you is the prayer of

H. Dunlavy

James G. Dunlavy and family.

Harvey Dunlavy is a grandson of Anthony Dunlevy 2nd and a son of Daniel Dunlevy.

Chicago Sept 23 (about 1867)
No. 755 Wabash Ave.

Dear Cousin,

Your letter accompanied with the bottle of medicine reached me yesterday, and I am much obliged to you and your wife for it. I think it has helped me already, tho I have only taken four doses of it.

John will be going to Washington the middle or last of next month. He expects to meet his daughter, now in Europe, at New York about the 10th of November and will go to Washington before that time, perhaps be there afterwards also. Any business you have he will attend to for you.

I think there will be no difficulty in your getting into some business here and one of my boys would probably like to join you in something. Frank has been expecting to commence a bakery business, but his funds are so locked up with the Park Commissioners that I do not see when he can sell or realize the value of his bonds. I will have the boys, however, look for something. A coal yard, I think would be a safe business. Coal always needed, does not injure by weather and is not liable to fire, ordinarily. Frank had a proposition from some man for a partnership in a coal yard, but whether he can now get it, I do not know. Will have him inquire. A grocery and provision store could be established to advantage in some new and growing part of the city and it always pays well. But Hyde Park at present would not support more than is in it already I presume.

We shall not definitely settle at any place until spring. I think, as I and my wife will be absent in Ohio nearly all winter and Rebecca would be too much alone without us. I presume therefore we shall remain with Frank until spring and not move up our goods until then.

Howard writes of going west this fall, but I do not think his health will justify it.
Will write to you again or have the boys write about business. In the meantime you might see what you could do with your farms.
As to the Dunlevy family, you are mistaken about your grandfather and grandmother coming from Ireland. Your grandfather did, but your grandmother Dunlevy was a Scotch lady by descent named White. I understood from father that his father, your grandfather as well as mine, came from Ireland about 1741 landed at Baltimore, settled at Winchester, Virginia, and there married Hannah White. The family came to Ireland about 1680 or a little before the battle of the Boyne. At this battle our great-grandfather and a brother of his was present, but took no part except to carry water to the thirsty and dying soldiers on the battlefield. They had fled from France on the repeal of the Edict of Nantes and after the massacre of Bartholomew's day. They were not French originally but Spaniards, and being Hugenots or Protestants had been compelled to leave Spain on account of the bloody persecutions of the Catholics of 1650 or that period. The name correctly is Don Levy or Don Levi as from father. The O'Dunlevy is the son of Dunlevy, as o in the Irish dialect has this meaning, hence O'Connell, O'Neall & C, all meaning originally son.
But I have filled my sheet and must close. Remember us to the family
Yours & c.,
A.H. Dunlevy
As to the Dunlevy family, I will add, that I understood from father that grandfather, whose name was Anthony, and after whom I am named, had eight brothers besides himself in all, one came to America before grandfather, but he was killed by the Indians in New Jersey, what family he left we never knew. The others with the family of great-grandfather'sbrother remained in Ireland where they have become very numerous. One man told Frank that he know one town that contained 200 men of his name. The Continental or European sound of e is like our a , and their sound of a is a broad like aw. Hency the e in Dunlevy is called a sounded like our long a, hence the difference of pronunciation and spelling. But nearly all, if not all, in Ireland spell it Dunlevy. I have heard of but one man in the lot out of our immediate relatives that does not spell it Dunlevy and one I met with in New Jersey, who spelled his mane Donlevy. His name was Francis, a family name with is and no doubt he was of the same stock, but having lost his parent or father when young he did not know anything, as I now think, about his family descent.

I forgot to say, that we received a letter from Eliza in China dates 8th August, last.
She was well, owing to the absence of Mr. Ashmore's coadjutor in the Mission, she says she cannot leave for a year or more.
Frank and John have offered to pay her passage home and back, but she says she cannot leave the field until Mr Johnson and wife, their associates return. They are now in California recruiting and so much like the climate that they wish to stay.
They have work there among the Chinese emigrants and therefore I suppose the Board will permit their stay for a year or more.
A.H.D
A.H. Dunlevy was a son of Francis Dunlevy and grandson of Anthony Dunlevy the second.

Anthony Dunlevy lll
(fourth son of Anthony Dunlevyll)

In every age there arises certain fanatical religious leaders who attempt to separate themselves and their followers from the rest of the world. Such as influence caused Anthony Dunlevy lll., with two of his older brothers, John, a former Presbyterian minister and doubtless a chief factor in this movement, and Daniel, to join the Shaker settlement at Pleasant Hill, Kentucky. One of the tenets of this faith is the absolving and ignoring of all earthly relationships. Anthony lll tried to persuade his wife to join him in this matter, but she refused to do so, preferring to heed the call of duty to her children rather than that of a fanatical religious leader. Thus she faced the world alone with only the help of Him who has promised to protect the fatherless and the widow.
His letter, written to his son and daughter, shows the attitude of the man, Anthony Dunlevy lll.

The community referred to below is the one Anthony Dunlevy lll joined, and where he lived and died.

The Vanishing Shakers.
(from the Boston Herald)

From Kentucky comes the story of three aged survivors of a once large colony of Shakers making arrangements to have their lands, valued at more than revert to the state. Thus is passing one more of the picturesque little Shaker communities that dotted the East and the middle west after the coming of Mother Ann Lee, "the elect lady" from England in 1774. There are only a few of them left.

Most of the colonies in passing have left riches in land and buildings, for the Shakers have been thrifty and industrious. History will probably place their religion in the long list of freak isms and ologies that have risen and fallen, but there has been much in the simplicity and purity of the Shaker life to make the thoughtful ponder.

James and Betsy:
Many years have rolled round since there has been any communication between us and perhaps you may say you do not care if as many more roll on without it. If you were nothing but animal flesh and blood I could unite with you and pass on without it but as there is a soul in you that must live forever either in peace or woe and that soul was once somewhat awake, I have a feeling to send you these lines if possible to revive that which has fallen asleep. I doubt not but you remember particularly Betsy when the power of God operated on her body when almost a child and continued for some years, until the testimony against the flesh and all sin came to our country when she forsook all for the world and pleasure thereof, and I judge she has felt little or nothing of it since. I received some faith in that testimony when all the family rose up against me enmass even the least child in the house would mince out something in disdain. I had so little experience in the faith at that time that I scarcely knew my right hand from the left. My suffering was so great that I cannot paint one-half, so it might be truly said of me, a man's foes are they of his own house. I sometimes would look if kind death would not release me from my sufferings, for I had not then learned that I had to fill my measure of the sufferings of Christ that were behind. Yet when I could consider that what I was doing was purely to do the will of God, it would give me solid peace. Now I do not feel anything against them that rose up against me, or in other words, against the testimony of God I had received. It was not them as human beings but the flesh that dwelt in them with the lust thereof. The same nature was in me that was in them all. The difference was I was trying to subdue it in myself and they were supporting it. I am thankful to God that I had strength given me to bear through all those trials, for of myself I could do nothing. It was the power of God in the Gospel that carried me along from that day to this. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation to all them that keep it, and that we have the true gospel we know as well as the apostle did when he could say "We know we are of God and the whole world lieth in the wicked one." (1 John 5-19) There we can see the character of the whole world, every one of them, no exception, no matter how great qualifications they may have or how useful they may be in society. As long as they are of the world they are in wickedness and they cannot help it., therefore the necessity of coming out and being separated. Now you can see that none marry but the children of this world, therefore all that marry are in wickedness. The Deciples of Christ are not of the world (John 17-14) and of course marry not. I suppose you have heard of the Adventists, called Millerites. These people had the same spirit at work with them that was in the old revival but in a greater degree. They were more spoken against, more disturbed in meeting and in person than any people now known of who were only in a preparatory work.

I have proven the way of God for many years and I do testify there can be no other way to find salvation than for a man to forsake all that he hath and bear the same cross that Jesus bore and be slain with Him from the foundation of the world, or in other words, to be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world are one and the same thing.
Now I have written this in real kindness. I hope you will receive it such as I do certainly know that no one can tell what to do to find salvation outside of this mortifying way called Shakerism.
I am
Anthony Dunlevy.

"Therefore, though few may praise, or help, or heed us,
Let us work on with head, or heart, or hands,
For that we know the future ages need us.
And we must help our time to take its stand.
Each single struggle has its wide vibration,
Working results that work results again;
Failure and death are not annihilation,
Our tears exhaled will make some future rain."

An Illinois Pioneer

"How dimly conscious of heroic action
Those hardy leaders in a nation's van
And dim their vision of the coming grandeur
That in the pathos of their lives began."

"Their's is a glory that abides forever
Their's is a kingdom, not to pass away."

James Garrell Dunlevy was born in southern Ohio where he spent his childhood and youth. At the age of twenty-one he came to Bond County, Illinois, where he lived several years, during which time he was married and then moved to Union Grove in Hennepin Township, Putnam County, where he lived during the remainder of his life pursuing the occupation of farming. He built one of the first three substantial houses in that part of the country.

He was one of those pioneers, who with musket in one hand and axe in the other, blazed their way through to civilization. He served in the Blackhawk War and did his part in the "laying of the cornerstone for the first century of Illinois greatness".

He took an active interest in all that pertained to the prosperity and well-being of that entire section. He was philanthropic and was enabled to assist many benevolent enterprises. He was a man of excellent judgment, progressive in thought, a loyal friend and a good neighbor.

His love of music was almost a passion and he possessed an excellent singing voice. He owned the first new piano in the county. He was well known as an earnest and influential advocate of anti-slavery principles and many were the conferences held at his home by the leading anti-slavery lights of that period. His two sons served in the civil war, the older one giving his life for the cause of the Union.

Second only to that of her husband was the service of Nancy Laughlin Dunlevy, a woman of sterling character, possessing natural intellectual strength and poise, her hospitality knew no limit. Of her it could have been said that without ostentation, "She stretcheth out her hand to the poor and she reacheth forth her hand to the needy." "In her mouth was the law of kindness"

Mary Elizabeth Dunlevy Harrison
Was a woman of power and influence. She was the mother of ten children and the great task of supervising the affairs of such a household, would test the powers, physical and mental, of any woman.
In ideals and the desire for those things which make for worthy-living, she and her husband Stephen Harrison 2nd, were in perfect union.
Great as was the demands of such a home, Elizabeth Harrison's interests reached far beyond the family circle. She was an advocate of franchise for women for many years before it became a public issue.
She was a believer in and a supporter of Christian Missions and kindred objects. She possessed an excellent voice and music was one of the attractive features of that home, where a gracious cordiality and a hospitable welcome greeted both stranger and friend.

Richard Ristine's Last Letter to His Family:
Lieutenant Richard Harrison Ristine wrote the following letter to be opened "In case of death"
My Dear Family:
While you read this you will know that I have died while in the big game for democracy, the most wonderful death in the world.
I have always fully appreciated the danger of flying, yet I entered this branch of the service because I hoped I could do my bit better in it.
I have done what I could, but God has chosen me as only one of the many who must go before the big game is won.
I love you all very dearly, altho I have not always shown it in actions, but I trust you will forgive me.
Many nights I have lain quiescent thinking of home and you all. And Oh! what I would have given to have been with you once again.
I pray for you all every night of my life. I hope God will see fit to let my dear brother return safely, and carry my good family name along, as it always has been an honorable one.
I pray that the Germans may never get the range of Battery E, 126th Field Artillery.
I request if my face is badly broken and my body is sent home, that you do not allow any one to see the remains except, if you wish, your close friends. The impression would not be a pleasant one.
I have a little money in the First National Bank in Lake Charles, take that and other money and pay promptly any bills that may be present.
I hope you will always live a happy, comfortable and prosperous life. I am young and have no dependents, who is better fitted to give his life that I? And I am glad to have given it for this cause.
I hope the war will soon be over and the Kaiser tortured to death.
Your loving Son and Brother
Dick.

Base Hospital
Camp wadsworth, S.C.
Sept. 23, 1918

Mrs H. G. Keneagy
4209 Berkley Avenue

Dear Aunt Lucy,

I am having a very wonderful work down here and the opportunities have opened up in a way that could hardly have been hoped for. I am now assistant chief of the medical side of the staff and while I have direct charge of the pneumonia wards, I am supervisor of the contagious wards, and do the consultation work throughout the hospital.

The next step in my progress will be either as chief of the medical staff here or will go out as chief of a base hospital for overseas duty. Just when this next step is to be taken is not known but it will be very shortly.

I rather anticipate the former and that will mean my stay here for a more or less indefinite period.

If all base hospitals are giving the same kind of care and attention to their patients that patients receive in this institution, you may be assured that there is not one person in a thousand who receives as good treatment in civilian life as they do here. If a patient does not come on in the best of progress, the chief of service sees him immediately, and from that moment he is under the eye of the entire consulting staff and will be seen by a consultant from four to six times each day. There are plenty of nurses so that the seriously sick get more attention from the nursing staff than the civilian patient would if they employed a special nurse. In my pneumonia wards we have six nurses Mondays and two or three at night, besides the supervisors.

Patients are seen by the ward surgeons at least three times each day, morning afternoon and after supper. So you can readily see that we are not loafing on the job to any great extent.

The change from home life to army life is a very radical one, yet all seem to make the change with little or no noticeable effect. Down here we are in a little eight by ten room with a cot, table and chair for furnishings, and eat on tin dishes with all the food put on the plate in the kitchen, but we eat with a relish that would make you think of a real Thanksgiving dinner. There are all sorts of entertainment's for the boys, and they say that they are very good, although I have not been to any of them as yet. When my day's work is done I am about ready to hit the hay and an evening's entertainment has very little attraction to me.

With my best wishes, I am,
your nephew

I thought that Dwight's letter was very splendid. I wish that I was overseas with him.

From the Diary of a Member of the 314th Field Signal Battalion.
Feb 9, 1918. Enlisted at Chicago, Ill. Ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Mobilization camp for the Signal Corps. A few days later sent to Camp Funston, Kansas. Assigned to Co. B, 314th Field Signal Battalion.
Our training consisted of daily hikes, setting up exercises, field maneuvers with the telephone and telegraph, also flags in the way of semaphore and wigwag. After three months of this training and examinations we entrained for the East. Crossing up in to Canada and coming down along the Hudson river to New York. May 18, arriving at Camp Mills. June 12, sailed on English ship Liesterchire. Our convoy consisted of thirteen ships and one battleship. After sailing fourteen days in a zigzag course, we arrived at Liverpool, England. June 24, by train through England to South Hampton then "running the gauntlet" crossing the English Channel to Cherbourg, France. After a night at a rest camp, we entrained and for five days and five nights journeyed on a "Frog" train, arriving at St. Blin. Here we received a month's intensive training.
Aug 3 Started for the front in French trucks, arriving at Bruley.
Aug 4 Received our rounds of ammunition and were sent into the lines, my personal order being to Lucy, to operate the Divisional switchboard.
Aug 8 Germans sent over a gas barrage and quite a number of our men were gassed.
Aug 11 Code names installed and our station was "San Diego".
Aug 12 Our code name changed to "Havana"
Aug 14 Air raids that night by the Germans.
Aug 24 Reserved Artillery commenced coming in both heavy and light and machine guns.
Sept 7 General Pershing visited divisional headquarters.
Sept 10 Arrived at Noviant, where we made our headquarters.
Sept 11 Took charge of telephone station and operated all day. At 1:00 A.M. had just got off duty and rolled into the bunk when the big St Mihiel drive started. Two big navy guns on the track above us nearly shook me out of bed. Went up on the hill to watch the "fire works" until 2:00 A.M.
Sept 12 Boys went over the top at 5:00 A.M. and we moved our Headquarters to Fliery. 8 A.M. sky was thick with airoplanes, both American and German. Prisoners came in drives, some had their full packs and were on the run. "Corn Willy" for supper, no breakfast or dinner, worked till 1:00A.M. Slept on the floor of an open dug out that night.

Sept 14 Moved our headquarters to Euvinzon, worked from 9:00 A.M. till 3:00 P.M. then went out with a motorcycle man to repair a line. Planes were bombing all roads and shelling Euvinzon, which compelled us to stop.

Sept 26 Big barrage started at 11:30 P.M. kept up till 5:15 A.M. when the boys went over the top. One regiment captured prisoners.

Oct 2 Bulgarians signed armistice.

Oct 7 Moved to Commercy by way of Bernicourt and Melincourt arrived at 8:00P.M.

Oct 9 Left Commercy in French trucks for Recicourt, stayed there a few days, then moved to Avicourt, rained all night. Supper consisted of coffee, bacon, and bread. Slept in a caved-in-dug-out lots of gas shells that night.

Oct 12 Moved to Eppenonville through Montfaucon, Ivory. Stayed in Eppenonville about a week, then moved headquarters to Gesnes, the Germans shelled us all the time. They killed 7 men and wounded 15, who were in line for mess.

Nov 1 Big Muese-Argonne drive started, small shelling went over until three A.M. then started the big barrage. Boys went over the top at 5:30 A.M. Moved to Le Dewey farm, arriving at 6:00 P.M. and set up headquarters. Prisoners running around unguarded. Worked all night and the next day and the next. Then moved our headquarters to Barricourt. I stayed behind and closed the station. The boys were going so fast that I did not catch up with them until they reached Tally, two towns beyond. Germans commenced to shell road in front of us but we did not stop. Went into Tally and started to work and the 75's were making such a noise that I could not hear on the switchboard. Went to Beauclair to repair a line and the Germans proceeded with their heavy shelling, returned at 11:00 P.M.

Nov 7 Heard news that a party of German delegates were to cross our lines for a conference.

Nov 11 Monday's orders were received at 9:00AM. to stop firing at 11:00 A.M. Felt strange without a gas mask and not hearing big guns. Our boys took Stenay by rifle fire, which was the last town captured in the war by the Americans.

Nov 20 With the Army of Occupation we started to march into Germany through Belgium and we moved to Stenay. Took up our divisional switchboard in an old school house, formerly used by the Germans as a big telephone exchange.

Nov 24 Moved to Damicourt, Belguim by way of Montmidy. We were greeted with flags and cheers as we passed along and the children wanted to shake our hands.

Nov28 Had a real Thanksgiving dinner cooked by a Belgium woman.

Nov 30 Moved to Saint Leger by way of Virton and Belmont.

Dec 1 Hiked from Saint Leger to Arlon, 30 kilometers, had a good meal and received our pay.
Dec 2 Hiked to Mersch, Luxemburg, about 27 kilometers, and was all in, feet sore, back lame. But had to work all night at the switchboard.

Dec 6 Left in truck at 10:00 P.M. for Kylburg, Germany. Arrived there almost frozen at 3:00 A.M. Set our stove in the street and had our breakfast, which consisted of oatmeal, coffee and bread.
Dec 15 We have installed our divisional switchboard and took over what lines we needed from the German telephone exchange. After a few days work had communication with Paris and other cities in France, as well as Germany. The work of our signal detail was to maintain and operate telephone and telegraph lines within the divisional area.
Feb 14 Sent to the 355th Infantry hospital at Bitburg, with the "flu" Came back to Kylburg, Feb 19.
Feb 27 Mont Smith and I went to Coblentz, by way of the Mozelle river, to see the 89th football game. And while there saw the American flag floating from the strongest fort of the Rhine, the fort Erin-Bughtstein, opposite Coblentz.
April 18 Had my first leave of absence, visited the wonderful city of Paris for three days including Easter Sunday. When I attended Easter services at the Notre Dame Cathedral. In Versailles, sent cards home that I wrote on the table where the peace treaty is to be signed.
May 11 Left Kylburg for Company headquarters at Rittersdorf.
May 12 Started for Erdorf, where we entrained for Brest.
May 18 Sailed for New York on the Prince Frederick Wilhelm.
May 27 Arrived in New York. Home Again!

LIFE

"Life is one and universal; its forms many and individual. Throughout this beautiful and wonderful creation there is never ceasing motion, without rest by night or day, ever weaving to and fro. Swifter than a weaver's shuttle it flies from Birth to Death, from Death to Birth; from the beginning seeks the end, and finds it not, for the seeming end is only a dim beginning of a new out-going and endeavor after the end. As the ice upon the mountain, when the warm breath of the summer sun breathes upon it, melts and divides into drops, each of which reflects an image of the sun; so life, in the smile of God's love, divides itself into separate forms, each bearing in it and reflecting an image of God's love"

Longfellow

" O Mighty river ! strong, eternal Will,
Wherein the streams of human good and ill
Are onward swept, conflicting, to the sea !
The world is safe because it floats in Thee"

"A most respecta[illegible] family," said Theodore Roosevelt of the Sadowskis. This tribute from the author of The Winning Of The West is highly justified. Sadowskis, indeed, deserve the grateful memory of their countrymen.

"The men of chain and compass," says Theodore Roosevelt, "played a part in the exploration of the West scarcely inferior to that of the heroes of axe and rifle, often, indeed, the parts are combined."

SOME SANDUSKY DESCENDANTS OF ANTONI SADOWSKI

Antoni Sadowski was born in Poland in 1669 of minor Polish nobility. He was one of the first Polish settlers in Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania. William Penn's colony was only thirty years old when he purchased 400 acres of land about fifty miles up the Schuylkill River from the city of the same name.

As one of the first Polish settlers in the county, he played a prominent role in the foundation of Amity Township, working together with the ancestors of Daniel Boone and Abraham Lincoln. He served as an Indian trader and served as negotiator and translator for one of the provincial governors of Pennsylvania protecting the frontier from Indian attacks.

He was one of the earliest most revered names in Pennsylvania commercial history. When his pack trains left for the Indian villages beyond the frontier, they carried goods that had come from ports along the Atlantic Seaboard, thereby creating one of the first commercial enterprises in Colonial Pennsylvania. Quietly without fuss or fanfare, Antoni Sadowski showed the way for others to follow.

He died April 22, 1736 and an inventory of his estate was made by George Boone, the grandfather of Daniel Boone. The burial place of Antoni Sadowski is marked by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission outside of St. Gabriel's Church in Douglassville, Pennsylvania.

As the country developed, Sadowski/Sandusky descendants were found among the pioneers of Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Tennessee. They all possessed that dauntless courage that pushed America's frontier across the mountains and plains to the Pacific shoreline. Like the progenitor of the clan, they cleared the way for others to follow in their foot steps.

Two daughters and a son survived him, all of whom lived to mature years and had large families. The descendants spread in all directions.

Andrew moved to Virginia and raised as adventurous brood of sons as any man has ever done in America. Two of them, James and Jacob, were with George Washington surveying land in Kentucky in 1772 with Isaac Hite, James Harrod and Daniel Boone. They played prominent roles in the construction of Harrodsburg, Kentucky - considered the first white settlement in that state. James married a cousin of George Washington. Emanuel was among the men who cut the first road to Tennessee. John was a soldier of a Virginia regiment during the American Revolution. He was captured by the British and died in a prisioner's camp. Samuel and Anthony were early pioneers of Kentucky. Hannah married Josiah Wilson.

Antoni Sadowski's daughter, Adav Justina, married James Warren. They both died in the fall of 1731 during a severe epidemic of small pox. They had two children, John and James, who eventually became cordwainers.

A brother, Jacob, was mentioned in the will of Adav Justina.

Sofia married Isaac Johnson.

Ann married Increase Miller about 1733 and moved to Bedford, New York.

The Sandusky Family

The Sandusky family traces its origin in the United States to Jacob Sodowsky, who was born in Poland about A. D., 1700, and emigrated to the British colony of Virginia in 1730.

His emigration was due, as tradition has it, to religious persecution. He settled in Virginia, and there married Miss Hannah Inskeep, a daughter of a respectable Virginia planter.

Family history shows the name was, at different times, and by different members of the family, spelt Sodowsky, Sodousky, and now, by universal custom, Sandusky. The change in orthography is unimportant; it is substantially the history of all language, including names.

The tradition is that the original impulse to this change was due to an error in spelling the name in a land-patent,—the patentee choosing to follow this irregularity in order to preserve regularity in his chain of title.

In the American Pioneer, Vol. II., p. 199, Mr. Jacob I. Green. of Tiffin, Ohio, writing concerning the name "Sandusky," under date February 28, 1842, says:

"The name 'Sandusky' is in such general use in our section of the State that it has become more extensively known perhaps, than any other one in the Union. The associations connected with it, ever since our State has been known to the whites, with its conquest and settlement, are such as to make anything concerning it interesting.

"Thinking that the origin of the name is not known to you, I send it for the 'Pioneer,' if this sketch should fall in with the design of your paper.

"At the time the French were establishing their line of trading posts on the Wabash and Maumee rivers, nearly 100 years since, connecting their operations on the Ohio with their settlements at Detroit, a Polish trader by the name of 'Sandusky,' or more properly spelt 'Sanduski,' established himself near the present site of Lower Sandusky, at the foot of the rapids of the river. His operations in trading for furs &c. with Indians being entirely confined to the river and bay, they soon became known to Europeans, and, afterwards to the Indians, as Sanduski's river and bay. Sanduski, quarreling with the Indians, was forced to quit the country for the settlement beyond the Ohio for safety. The Indians, some time after, followed and killed him in Virginia."

He was, however, mistaken as to the family left our grandfather. He left four sons and one daughter, & settled in different places; but the family has not much increased".

This letter by Mr. Green was the occasion of a letter to the American Pioneer, Vol II. p. 325. dated Cincinnati, Ohio, March 15, 1843, written by Isaac Sodowsky and Jacob Sandusky, from which the following extract is taken: "Our grandfather ~~Isaac~~ Jonathan Sandusky, or more properly Sodowsky, came to this country, as we were told, in the reign of Queen Anne of England and landed and settled where the city of New York is now. He became an Indian trader, and lived at Sandusky, as stated by Mr. Green, but the time we know not. For some cause not known to us, a dispute arose between him and the Indians, and on his way from Sandusky to the Potomac, in Virginia, where, it is understood, his family were stationed, he was killed in Virginia by the Indians, or, as was more generally believed, by some whites on the credit of the Indians.

"Our father, James Sandusky, came down the river in 1773, and again in 1774, with Hite and Harrod.

In the first trip they went down as far as 'the falls', and returned. In the last, they went down to the mouth of the Kentucky River, and up that stream to Harrod's Station, where they cleared land and planted corn.

"This was the first improvement in Kentucky, but the settlement was broken up by the Indians. It may be worth mentioning that these trips were both made in periogues, or large canoes. In the second trip they encamped at the mouth of Deer Creek, where Cincinnati now is. It is believed that they cut the first tree ever cut by white men on that ground.

"Our father returned to Virginia upon the breaking up of Harrod's settlement. He then married and moved to Washington County, Kentucky, and built Sandusky's Station, on Pleasant Run, about the year 1776. In the same year Harrod returned and built his station.

"On the breaking up of Harrod's settlement in 1774, our Uncle Jacob traveled to Cumberland River; He then got a canoe, descended the Cumberland, Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans; from thence he came round, and at last got back to Virginia, via Baltimore. He is believed to have been the first white man that descended those rivers, except French or Spanish. He came out and settled at Sandusky's Station with our father.

"From this station he and our father removed across the Kentucky River, and settled in Jessamine County in about 1785. Our uncle lived there until his death about ten years ago. He kept notes of the country and had great quantities of them. * * * Our father removed to Bourbon County about 1786, or 1787, where one of us now lives, on Cane Ridge. His station was then the farthest east from Lexington, unless it might have been at the L. B. Licks, or Kenton's Station.

Isaac Sodowsky.
Jacob Sandusky."

Upon this letter the editor of the American Pioneer remarks: "It will be seen by the above that the origin of the name Sandusky is fairly settled to be as Mr. Green represented. The Messrs. Sodowsky are twin brothers, as they say, and as any person would almost believe from their near resemblance to each other, even if they denied it. It is a little singular that two such different orthographies should be introduced between brothers. They told us that the occasion of Jacob altering the spelling of his name was the misspelling of it in some land titles, which he chose to follow, rather than hazard by adhering to the proper orthography and pronunciation."

The foregoing correspondence as to the origin of the name Sandusky was the occasion of a further communication on the same subject to the American Pioneer, Vol. II., p. 464, from John H. James, dated Urbana, September 6, 1843. as follows:

"John S. Williams, Esq.:

I have looked over the first volume of the American Pioneer, and numbers of the second as far as published, which you left for me in my absence. * * * * * * * I propose two small corrections, which are proper for the present volume:

"1. * * * * * *

"2. The origin of the name Sandusky as given by Jacob Green, Vol. I., p. 199, on the authority of the sons of the trader Sandusky, and which they concur in as correct, Vol. II, p. 325, is inaccurate. The Polish name Sodowsky, from its similarity to the Indian name Sandusky, has doubtless become changed to the latter, but it is improbable of itself that the Indians first changed the sound of his name, and then applied it to the places thus designated.

"I have a note of a conversation with William Walker, at Columbus, in 1835-6, at which time he was principal chief of the Wyandottes at Upper Sandusky, in which I asked the meaning of the word Sandusky. He said it meant 'the cold water,' and should be sounded San-doos-tee. He said it 'carried with it the force of a preposition.'

"The Upper Cold Water and the Lower Cold Water, then, were descriptive Indian names given long before the presence of the trader Sodowsky. In the vocabulary of Wyandotte words given by John Johnston, Esq., formerly Indian agent in Ohio, as printed in Archaeologia Americana, Vol. I., p. 295, the word water is given Sa, un-dus-te, and, in p. 297, he gives the name of Sandusky River as Sa, unduste, or 'water within water pools'."

This letter is referred to with approval in the sketch of Sandusky County, Ohio, in "Historical Collections of Ohio," by Henry Howe, 1848

In bulletin number 197, issued in 1902 by the Department of the Interior of the United States upon "the Origin of Certain Place Names in the United States," it is said as to the name Sandusky: "County, river and city in Ohio, whose name by some authorities is said to be derived from the Indian word Outsandouke, 'there is pure water here,' or Sa-anduste, 'large bodies or pools of water.' Another authority states that it was named for Jonathan Sandousky, a Polish trader of the vicinity." ✓

The foregoing communications and authorities are given for the reason that they contain family history of some interest, aside from the question as to the origin of the names "Sandusky Bay" and "Sandusky River;" they seem to solve this question in favor of the Indian origin of these names, and contrary to the opinion of Mr. Green. It is also claimed by some members of the family that Jacob Sodowsky I. died and was buried near Cumberland Gap, while on a journey West with some of his children, and that the Sandusky who was killed by Indians, as stated by Mr. Green, was one of his descendants.

Of the marriage of Jacob Sodowsky and Hannah Inskeep there were born seven children, all of whom settled and died in Kentucky: James, the oldest, born in 1749, settled in Bourbon County and died there in 1830; Jacob, born in 1750, settled in Jessamine County, and died there in 1832; Samuel, born in 1752, settled and died in Casey County; Emanuel, born in 1754, settled and died in Wayne county; John, born in 1756, was killed at the Upper Blue Licks, on Licking river, by the Indians; Anthony, born in 1758, settled in Washington County, and died there about 1842; =1810 Hannah married ~~Josiah~~ Wilson at Harrodsburg, and died there.

James and Jacob, to whom this sketch more particularly relates, were among the first settlers in Kentucky, and were a part of much of its early history. They are frequently mentioned in Collins' History of Kentucky. They were the two oldest children, aged respectively 25 and 23, when they made their first journey into Kentucky. It is quite clear that the other members of the family emigrated to Kentucky at a much later period than James and Jacob,—probably after the close of the American Revolution, when the country had become much more thickly settled, and the hazards of pioneer life among hostile Indians, particularly during the turbulence of the Revolution, had materially decreased.

James and Jacob first went to Kentucky in 1773; the country was then known as Fincastle County, Virginia; on December 31, 1776, Kentucky County was cut off from Fincastle County, and in May, 1780, Kentucky County was divided into Jefferson, Fayette and Lincoln counties.

In 1773-4-5 James and Jacob were mostly engaged in surveying along with John Floyd, Isaac Hite, James Douglas and others, in the sections now known as Georgetown, Nicholasville, North and South Elkhorn, Boone's Creek, Jessamine Creek, Clear Creek, Hickman Creek, &c. One survey covered the Royal Spring at Georgetown, and another the big spring at the head of Jessamine Creek. In a deposition given by Jacob Sodowsky (II.), he states that he and a companion discovered the big spring at the head of Jessamine Creek (near Nicholasville), and on reporting it to James Douglas, the latter laid his claim of 1,000 acres to cover it, and "named it for his only daughter."

This statement is confirmed by Collins' History of Kentucky, Vol. II., p. 399. Speaking of Jessamine County, which was formed in 1798 out of the southern part of Fayette, he says that it "derives its name from Jessammine Creek, which rises in the northwestern part of the county, and flows southwardly through it to the Kentucky river. The creek was named in honor of a beautiful young lady, Jessamine Douglas, whose father, a Scotchman, early settled at the head of the creek, entered the land around it, and selected its name."

The same author (Collins, Vol. I., p. 17) states that Captain Thomas Bullitt, in August 1773, laid out the town of Louisville on part of the plat of the present city, and gives "Jacob Sandusky or Sodowsky" (II) as authority for the statement.

Referring in this connection to Jacob Sodowsky (II.), he says he was "either one of the surveying party, or was at the Falls about that time. He kept full notes of the settlement of the country, and was a great and methodical adventurer."

While the town of Louisville was laid off in 1773, it was not settled until 1778. The first settlement of Kentucky was at Harrodsburg, on Thursday, June 16, 1774. (Collins. Vol. II, 520).

In May, 1774, Captain James Harrod's company of adventurers, numbering 31 men, followed in two or three weeks by Isaac Hite's company, numbering 11 men, came to the present seat of Harrodsburg, and laid off a town, then called Harrod's Town, now Harrodsburg, and built a number of cabins. Isaac Hite's company was composed of the following men: Robert Gilbert, James Knox, Jacob Sandusky, David Williams, James Hamilton, James McCulloch, James Sodousky, Benj. Tutt, Isaac Hite, Alexander Petrey, and one unknown. (Collins, II., 517).

While the town was being laid off, Daniel Boone reached this point, on a mission by the governor of Virginia, and assisted in laying off the town. Under an alarm created by Boone's message and an Indian attack, the town was abandoned in July, 1774, but re-occupied on March 15, 1775, by Captain James Harrod and a new company of over 50 men, among whom were James Douglas, Isaac Hites and James Sodousky. This was 20 days before Daniel Boone and his company built two cabins at what is now Boonesborough, and which Col. Henderson, on his arrival April 20, 1775, named Fort Boone. It is said that Daniel Boone's wife and daughter reached Boonesborough September 8, 1775, and were the "first white women who ever stood upon the banks of the Kentucky River;" but on the same day Mrs. McGaray, Mrs. Hogan, and Mrs. Denton arrived at Harrodsburg, and "were the first white women upon the waters of Salt River." Collins, II., 518.

Daniel Boone had come from North Carolina to Kentucky on a hunting mission in 1769, and remained till March 1771, when he returned to North Carolina. He left North Carolina again with his family and some others in September, 1773, but, by reason of an attack by Indians, the party was deterred, and his family did not reach Boonesborough till September 8, 1775, though Boone himself was in Kentucky in 1774. It is true, however, that Boone was anticipated several years by a number of surveyors, among whom was George Washington, in 1770, and that, during the years 1774-5, a large number of bold and daring surveyors and adventurers were engaged in locating land warrants and making surveys in Kentucky, among whom were George Rogers Clark, Thomas Bullitt, Hancock Taylor, the McAfees, James Douglas, Isaac Hite, Simon Kenton, James Harrod, and others.

It was during the attack by Indians upon Harrodstown, in July, 1774, and the abandonment of that settlement, that Jacob Sandusky and James Douglas traveled to the Cumberland River, and descended that river and the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, and thence to Virginia.

These surveys were made in the face of constant and grave dangers from the Indians, who came from the North and South to this favorite hunting ground, and by their frequent conflicts gave it the Indian name "Kentucke," meaning "The Dark and Bloody Ground."

As a matter of protection against Indians many "stations" were built, mostly between 1775 and 1785; these "stations" were constructed thus: "The settlers dug a trench with spades, or hoes, or such implements as they could command, in which they set split timbers reaching 10 or 12 feet above level, enclosing space sufficient for 5, 6, 8 or more dwellings, and a block house (as a kind of citadel,) with port-holes."

In 1776, Jacob and James Sandusky built "Sandusky's Station" on Pleasant Run, in what is now Washington County. (Collins. I., 18). In 1786 or 1787 James Sandusky moved to Cane Ridge, in Bourbon County, and settled another "station," which was probably known by the name of Cane Ridge. (Collins, II., 21).

At the beginning of the American Revolution James and Jacob Sandusky, or Sodowsky, returned to Eastern Virginia and joined the Continental army. James served as captain under Count Pulaski, and Jacob under his brother. They were present at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis, September 9, 1781, and it is probable that they served throughout the American Revolution. At the close of the Revolution they returned to Kentucky. James settled in Bourbon County, and married Mary Ball Brown; she was born in 1756, and died in 1812. Of this union there were born the following children: Andrew, Thomas, Sarah, Jacob, Isaac, Abraham.

Ephraim

Jacob Sodowsky (II.) married Jemima Voss, a daughter of Col. William Voss, in Virginia. He settled in Jessamine County, Kentucky, where, in 1785, he received from the state of Virginia a grant, signed by Patrick Henry, then Governor, to 1,000 acres of land lying on both sides of Sinking Creek. This creek rises near the Fayette line, and "runs west about 3¼ miles north of Keene, passing through the farms of Nat Lafon, Nat Blackford, and Jacob G. Sandusky, and unites in Woodford with a smaller sinking creek from the north, forming Clear Creek. It sinks four times, running underground from one-fourth of a mile to a mile each time." (Collins II., 396).

A part of this land, on the south side of Sinking Creek, Jacob transmitted to his son, Ephraim, and upon this tract he, and his son, Ephraim, and Ephraim's son, William, are buried. A portion of this tract remains in the family to this date.

Of the marriage of Jacob Sodowsky and Jemima Voss there were born three children: Ephraim, Jacob, and Susan, who died in infancy; on the death of his first wife he married Elizabeth Evans, and of this union there were born five children: Rebecca, Sallie, Margaret, Susan, James.

Ephraim first married Anna Evans, by whom there were eleven children: William, Malinda, Jacob E., Eliza, Rebecca, Susan, John E., Jonathan, Ephraim, Margaret, and Henry C.; on the death of his first wife he married Hester Collins; of this marriage two children were born: Ephraim L., and George W.

It is not deemed necessary to proceed further here with genealogies. By the aid of the tables in the appendix the living generation may readily connect itself with the past. The family have become numerous and widely dispersed, but there is a kinship among all who bear the name.

This narrative relates particularly to James and Jacob, the two oldest sons of Jacob Sodowsky I., for the reason that their lives were closely associated, and the sources of information as to their early history are more accessible than the data as to the other branches of the family, who have received scant mention herein of necessity and not by choice.

A communication from the pen of Mr. W. H. Polk, of Lexington, Ky., appearing in "The Morning Herald," Lexington, Kentucky, Sunday, April 1, 1900, contains some interesting reminiscences of the family and of pioneer life in Kentucky, and for that reason is copied in the appendix.

The purpose of this sketch,—to collate and record in permanent and easily accessible form the more important facts in regard to the origin and early history of the family in the United States, for the use, benefit and interest of the family—being now accomplished, the narrative is here closed.

Appendix

The following Communication appeared in "The Morning Herald," Lexington, Ky., Sunday, April, 1, 1900.

SANDUSKY FAMILY.

Col. W. H. Polk Adds Valuable Historical Facts to The Herald's Sketch of Jacob Sodowskie.

Editor Herald:

The historical articles appearing occasionally in the columns of your paper are appreciated by all who have a taste for solid reading. I was interested in the article entitled "Historic Papers" in last Sunday's issue, concerning Jacob Sodowskie, grandfather of Mr. Jacob Sandusky, of this city. But enough was not said about that fearless and enterprising pioneer. In my opinion he stands out as one of the most striking figures in Kentucky's early history.

George Rogers Clark, Boone, Kenton, the Todds, Ben Logan, Harrod, Floyd and others have been extensively exploited by historians. But there was another class, less conspicuous than these, but equally entitled to credit. This class embraced the guides, markers and chain carriers of the early surveyors, who came with Douglass, Floyd, Hite and Taylor in 1773, 1774 and 1775, and assisted them in the first surveys made in "the unrivaled valley of the Elkhorn," as Bancroft termed this section.

The first locations made in Kentucky were "military surveys," by virtue of the Governor's warrant and the King's proclamation in 1763. These land boundaries were granted by the King to those who had served in the war between France and Great Britain—Braddock's war, Pontiac's war, and other contests wherein the French and their Indian allies were opposed to the British and Colonial forces. To such soldiers the King granted bounties of land, and Gov. Dunmore, of the royal colony of Virginia, issued a certificate stating that the officer or soldier was entitled to so much land under said proclamation, and by reason of his services, and directing any authorized surveyor to lay off said land to the claimant upon "any of the western waters." Col. Wm. Preston was made surveyor for Fincastle County (as Kentucky was then called), and he appointed a corps of assistant surveyors to do the field work and make returns. All these surveyors were examined by the "President and Masters of William and Mary College" as to their fitness. These deputy surveyors organized their respective corps of assistants, such as guides, markers, chain carriers, etc., and proceeded to Kentucky. Many of the claimants placed their certificates in the hands of the surveyors for location, or sent them out by friends who came here as adventurers to hunt up lands.

The first survey made in Kentucky was executed by George Washington at the forks of the Big Sandy, where Louisa now stands, between 1767 and 1770, for John Fry. He made a seccond one on Little Sandy, in Greenup County, for the same party. A patent was issued for the former in 1772.

The next surveyors who came out to Kentucky were Hancock Taylor, Capt. Thos. Bullitt, Benjamin Ashby, Gen. Thompson and one or two others. Hancock Taylor and the McAfees ascended Kentucky River and surveyed at Frankfort and over on Salt River. Bullitt surveyed at the falls of the Ohio, now Louisville; Ashby on North Elkhorn, for the Ohio Company, known under its last organization as the "Grand Ohio Company," after it had absorbed the Walpole and Trent grants. Gen. Thompson, of Pennsylvania, surveyed on the north fork of the Licking.

These parties carried back to Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, marvelous accounts of the richness and fertility of Kentucky, and in the following year (1774) other surveyors came out when Taylor, Bullitt and the McAfees returned. Among these were John Floyd, Isaac Hite and James Douglass. Floyd was of part Indian blood, but a man of education and much force of character. Douglass was a Scotchman, it is said. Taylor and Floyd were afterward slain by the Indians. Floyd, Douglass and Hite made large blocks of surveys in Central Kentucky. Floyd laid his own claim for 1,000 acres, covering the "Royal Spring" at Georgetown; two, near by, for Patrick Henry, and others for different parties. He then ran a line of surveys up North Elkhorn, past Bryan's (spelled without a "t") Station, and on to the "Cross Plains," now Athens. Then another line down Boone's Creek to the Kentucky River. Douglass surveyed on North Elkhorn, Jessamine Creek, Clear Creek and Hickman Creek, where he came again in contact with Floyd's party. Taylor also made some surveys on the waters of South Elkhorn, as did Isaac Hite. I have seen nowhere in histories of the West the fact stated that Ashby surveyed for the Ohio Company on North Elkhorn, but I have his deposition to that effect. In running up North Elkhorn in 1774, Floyd was puzzled by finding corners marked "Ohio C." The abrogation by the Virginia Assembly of the old royal grants obliterated the transactions of the Ohio Company on North Elkhorn.

Along with James Douglass, in the capacity of chain carriers and markers came James and Jacob Sodowskie. James was the oldest, born in 1748; Jacob in 1750, Samuel in 1752, Emanuel in 1754, John in 1756, Anthony in 1758, Hannah in 1760. These were the children of Jacob Sodowskie, Sr., who was born in Poland about 1700. He emigrated to Virginia in 1730, engaged as an overseer for a wealthy planter named Inskip, and shortly after married his daughter, Hannah. James died in Bourbon County in 1830; Jacob in Jessamine County, near Keene, in 1832; Samuel, who was a noted gunsmith, settled in Casey County and died there; Emanuel settled in Wayne County, and died during the Civil war, aged 92; John was killed at the upper Blue Licks, on Licking River, by the Indians; Anthony settled in Washington County, and died there about 1842, aged 84 years; Hannah married a man named Wilson, at Harrodsburg, and died there.

Of these brothers, the two most conspicuous were James and Jacob. For a time Jacob was also a chain carrier for Hite. Like his brother surveyor, Floyd, who claimed the Royal spring at Georgetown, Douglass was also somewhat of a "big spring fiend." I have about twenty depositions made by James and Jacob, and in one of them the latter says he and a companion discovered the big spring at the head of Jessamine Creek (now Nicholasville) and went back to camp and reported it to Douglass. Immediately Douglass moved to the spring, encamped, "named it for his only daughter, Jessamine," and laid his claim of 1,000 acres to cover it.

This statement of Jacob disposes of the tradition that the spring was named for the jessamine flower growing profusely along the stream from the spring to Kentucky River. But I can find nowhere evidence to substantiate the statement of Collins in his History of Kentucky, that Douglass settled there and that his daughter was killed by the Indians. Douglass' survey passed to a man named Cogar (Michael Cogar, I think, if I remember the statement in one of these old depositions), and the spring was afterwards called "Cogar's Big Spring." He was the ancestor of James L. Cogar, now of Midway, so well known for his great size and intense Democracy. Floyd laid claim to this spring, as I have stated, and laid a claim of 1,000 acres to cover it. He also surveyed a claim for Jacob Sodowskie, joining his line on the west, covering another big spring emptying into Clear Creek. Evans' survey adjoined Sodowskie's. Other surveys were made adjacent for for the Evans, Blackfords and Youngs, all of whom intermarried with the Sodowskies.

I have in my possession a copy of this block of surveys. One of them was for Gen. Andrew Lewis, who commanded at Point Pleasant, and his brother, Col. Chas. Lewis, killed in that battle.

It was while Floyd, Douglass, Hite and Taylor (the former assisted by Jacob and James Sodowskie) were busy surveying in Kentucky, that Daniel Greathouse and his lawless white ruffians attacked and killed the sister and relatives of the Indian chief, Logan, at Yellow Creek, on the Ohio, which event precipitated the war known as "Dunmore's War." Lord Dunmore dispatched Daniel Boone to Kentucky to warn the surveyors of the impending storm, and, accompanied by Michael Stoner, Daniel executed that mission in a short time. The Indians, already incensed at the advent of the surveyors into Kentucky, with their "devilish instruments," as they called the compass, and goaded to desperation by the ruthless and unwarranted murder of Logan's family, sought revenge. From their towns on the Wabash, the Miamis and Scioto, they poured into Kentucky. The Cherokees from south of the Cumberland, especially the lawless band of old chief "Dragging Canoe," of that nation, from Chickamauga Creek, came up to Cumberland Gap and along the Wilderness road, each bent on taking white scalps.

The headquarters of the surveyors on the waters of Kentucky River was Harrodstown, where Capt. James Harrod and his men built a fort in May of that year. The McAfees had made a number of surveys the year before on Salt River, below the station. By the time Boone reached Harrodsburg the Indians had commenced their work. On July 20, while Jacob and James Sodowskie, James Cowan, Douglass and several others were nooning at a spring three miles from Harrodstown, they were fired on by Indians and Cowan was killed. Most of the party escaped to the fort, but Jacob Sodowskie and another (one account says James Douglass), thinking they could not reach the fort, directed their course to the Cumberland River, made a canoe, passed down it and the Mississippi, and got home via the Spanish settlements of Florida. A memoir preserved in the Sadowskie family, a copy of which I have, says Jacob and companion took a canoe at the Cumberland, and from thence went down that stream and the Mississippi, taking a vessel home from New Orleans. Collins says they went from Louisville. I prefer the Sodowskie account, as it has been handed down from Jacob himself, while Collins derived most of his information second-hand from Gen. R. B. McAfee, a son of one of the immigrants.

The next year (1775) found the Sodowskie brothers back in Kentucky with Floyd, Douglass, Hite and Taylor, and resumed their old business of surveying in the same neighborhoods. The following year the Revolutionary war began, and the Indian hostilities were renewed and continued. The Sodowskies returned to Virginia, where, after Jacob had married Jemima Voss, they joined the Continental army. They were at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis, September 9, 1781.

After the war they came back to Kentucky. Jacob settled at Big Bone Lick, Boone County, where he made salt for several years, on contract, for a Mr. Darnell. He then entered (Nathaniel Evans acting as his agent), 1,000 acres of land on Sinking Creek, Jessamine County, moved to it, and died there in 1832. He was a worthy progenitor of a most excellent race of descendants. I have known them for the past thirty years. They have always been noted for their strong common sense, frugality, and sturdy, upright characters—good men and women, good wives and solid citizens, almost without exception accumulating good estates and handing them down to their children. Hospitable and unostentatious, I know of no more sterling family in Kentucky.

In conclusion, permit me to call attention to an error in your article of last Sunday, where you state that Jacob Sodowskie is supposed to have settled in this state as early as 1776. Among more than a hundred pioneer depositions in my possession, I have as heretofore stated, twenty or more that were given by Jacob and James Sodowskie, who were always in great demand to prove corners and surveys. In one of these it is stated that they first came to Kentucky in 1773, with James Douglass. I make the correction because history, as you know, must be made up of a relation of facts, else it ceases to become history. There is much so-called "history" that has been written about Kentucky that is purely fiction, and it is my purpose at some time to puncture some of these fictions with the cold steel of official surveys and sworn affidavits of pioneer settlers.

nd his brother Arthur, who joined him in Virginia. The brother enlisted as a soldier in the Revolutionary Army, and after leaving for the war was never again heard from by his relatives. Alexander Atchison subsequently migrated from Virginia to Kentucky, bought land on what is now Tates Creek Pike, in Fayette county, and on the farm which he improved he and his wife spent their remaining days. They were the parents of five children, Hamilton, John, Kitty, James and William.

John Atchison, a native of Fayette county, was educated at Transylvania University, but instead of adopting a profession turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, for about fifty years carrying on general farming in Fayette county. Removing then to Warren county, he bought land near Bowling Green, and was there a resident the remainder of his days. He married Nancy Ayers, who was born in Virginia, a daughter of Thomas Ayers, who spent his entire life in Virginia. She came to Fayette county on a visit, and while here Mr. Atchison, who wooed her successfully, won her for his bride. Seven children were born of their union, as follows: Juliet G., Samuel Ayers, Zuriah, Hamilton, Cadwallader, John Atchison, Kittie A. and Thomas A. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pettit, the parents of Mrs. Scott, reared five children, namely: Sarah, who married Daniel B. Bryan, grandson of Daniel Boone; Nancy, widow of George W. Headley, of whom a brief biographical sketch appears elsewhere in this volume; William; Nathaniel; and Florence Rebecca, now Mrs. Scott. Mrs. Scott and her daughter Paulina, her only child, live on West Third street, Lexington, occupying the pleasant home built by Mr. Scott. Mrs. Scott was reared in the Presbyterian faith and attends this church, to which Mr. Scott also belonged.

ISAAC SANDUSKY.—A native of Kentucky, Isaac Sandusky was a life-long resident of Jessamine county, his birth occurring July 2, [illegible]4, and his death, March 10, 1897. Trained from his early youth to habits of honesty and industry, he succeeded to the occupation of his immediate ancestors and as a tiller of the soil [illegible] with satisfactory success. His father, [illegible] Evans Sandusky, was born in Jessamine county, Kentucky, August 29, 1817, being a son of Ephraim Sodowsky, grandson of Jacob Sodowsky, and great-grandson of Jacob Sodowsky, Sr., the emigrant ancestor.

Jacob Sodowsky, as the name was originally spelled, was born and bred in Poland. Coming to the United States as a young man, about [illegible], he located in Virginia, becoming overseer on the plantation of Esquire Insheep, whose daughter, Hannah Insheep, he subsequently married. He and his wife spent their remaining days in Virginia. They reared a large family of children, several of whom came to Kentucky in pioneer times, among them being their sons Jacob, Jr., and James, one the paternal great-grandfather of Mr. Sandusky and the other his maternal great-grandfather. These brothers came to this state in 1773 to assist in making surveys, and were among the first white men to explore this section of the country. They were with Captain Harrodd at Harrodsburg in 1774, the year in which the town was platted and when the first crop of corn was planted. The Indians becoming troublesome during that summer, the company of white men abandoned the town, the Sodowsky brothers making their way to the Cumberland river and securing a dugout, in which they went down the Cumberland, Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, where they shipped to Baltimore, thence to their old home in Virginia. They afterward participated in the Revolutionary war and, it is said, were present at the surrender of Cornwallis.

Jacob Sodowsky, Jr., a part of whose life record is given in the preceding paragraph, was born in Virginia in 1750. Soon after the close of the Revolutionary war he returned to Kentucky and located in Jessamine county, where he had a grant of a thousand acres of land, his brother James receiving a similar grant in Bourbon county, Kentucky. Improving a homestead from the wilderness, he was here engaged in tilling the soil the remainder of his long and busy life, passing away in 1832. He married Jemima Voss, who was born in Virginia and died in Kentucky about 1830. Her father, Captain William Voss, whose surname was sometimes spelled "Vouse," served in the Revolutionary war, being a captain in the Eighth Virginia of Foot, commanded by Colonel James Wood, serving from May, 1777, until May, 1779.

Ephraim Sodowsky, son of Jacob Sodowsky, Jr., was born October 1, 1779, and spent his entire life on the parental homestead in Jessamine county, his death occurring September 1, 1854. He succeeded to the ownership of the farm which his father hewed from the forest, and carried on a substantial business as a farmer and stock raiser. At his death his body was laid to rest in the family burial plot on the farm. The maiden name of his wife was Ann Evans. She was born in what is now Brown county, Ohio, June 15, 1784, and died in Jessamine county, Kentucky, on the home farm, December 24, 1843. Her father, John Evans, was a pioneer of the Northwest Territory and one of the first settlers of that part of Ohio now included within the limits of Brown county.

John Evans Sandusky received good educational advantages and as a young man taught school a number of terms. He subsequently bought a tract of land about a mile from the parental homestead and was there actively and successfully engaged in general farming and stock raising until his death, which occurred in 1872. He married, July 4, 1842, Hannah Sodowsky, who was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, January 23, 1824, and was a lineal descendant of Jacob Sodowsky, the emigrant ancestor, her father, Jacob Sodowsky, having been a son of James Sodowsky, referred to above, and grandson of Jacob, the emigrant. She passed to the life beyond July 20, 1892. Her children, eight in number, were as follows: Jacob, Chilton A., John William, Inez Bell, Glendora, Isaac, Lulu V. and Mary E. The names of these children and the dates of their births were all recorded in the Family Bible by the father, the last name retaining its original spelling, "Sodowsky," until the birth of Isaac, when it was changed to its present spelling, "Sandusky."

Isaac Sandusky, the sixth child and youngest son of his parents, was a life-long resident of Jessamine county, where he was successfully engaged in agricultural pursuits, being an industrious and prosperous farmer and stock-raiser. He married, January 27, 1881, Susan H. Hardwicke, who was born in Courtland, Alabama, a daughter of William Hardwicke. Mr. Hardwicke was born of early English ancestry, in Virginia, and as a young man moved to Courtland, Alabama, where he was engaged in mercantile business for many years, residing there until his death, at the comparatively early age of fifty-two years. He was one of the leading merchants of the place and took an intelligent interest in the public affairs of his adopted city, which he served as mayor. He married Ann E. Follis, who was born in Virginia and was connected with many of the best families of the state, being related to the Paine and Wells families and being a collateral descendant of Thomas Jefferson. She died at the age of forty years, leaving two children, William and Susan H., now Mrs. Sandusky. William, the only son, attended Center College, in Danville, and studied law in Philadelphia. After his admission to the bar he practiced law for a while in Courtland, Alabama, and then migrated to Texas, where he died, unmarried, when but thirty years of age.

Mrs. Sandusky has one daughter, Katherine, wife of Dr. Henry Foushee, a well-known physician in Lexington, Kentucky. Mrs. Sandusky is a member of the Presbyterian church, to which her husband also belonged.

Major Henry Clay McDowell, who died on his fine estate, "Ashland," near the city of Lexington, Fayette county, on the 18th of November, 1899, was a scion of a family whose name has been one of marked distinction in connection with the annals of American history and one of special prominence in the state of Kentucky. A man of high character and exceptional ability, Major McDowell left a definite and benignant impress upon the history of Kentucky, and his influence penetrated into the industrial and civic affairs of the state in no uncertain way. He was an able member of the state bar, was called upon to serve in various positions of public trust and was a potent factor in connection with various lines of productive enterprise after his virtual retirement from the work of his profession. He well upheld the prestige of the honored name that he bore and such were his life and labors that it is altogether consonant that in this publication be entered a tribute to his memory and a brief record of his career, which was one of signal usefulness and distinction.

Henry Clay McDowell was born at Fincastle, Botetourt county, Virginia, on the 9th of February, 1832, and was a son of Dr. William Adair and Maria Hawkins (Harvey) McDowell. Dr. McDowell was one of the distinguished representatives of the medical profession in Kentucky and was engaged in practice in the city of Louisville for a number of years. He made a special study of pulmonary tuberculosis, commonly designated consumption, and was particularly successful in the treatment of this dread disease. A treatise which he prepared "On the Curability of Consumption in All Its Stages" attracted bitter and condemnatory attention on the part of the medical profession of Louisville. But long after his death it was recognized as the first specific work ever published concerning tuberculosis and its treatment. It was written long before the distinguished Bennet published his views on the subject. This valuable work was published in 1843. Dr. William Adair McDowell was born near Harrodsburg, Mercer county, Kentucky, March 21, 1795. After his mother's death his early boyhood was passed with his uncle, Dr. Ephraim McDowell, whom he later assisted in many of his operations. He received an excellent education along both general and professional lines, and graduated in the Med-

EWALD SCHNEIDER was born in the city of Lengenfeld, Saxony, Germany, April 10, 1843. He commenced life as a sailor boy when ten years old, sailed in the Pacific, Mediterranean, Atlantic Ocean and the North Sea; has been in Africa and Australia. He came to America via the steamer "Araco," and enlisted in the regular army; was stationed at Carlisle Barracks, and strictly drilled for several months, and then ordered to Louisville, Ky., where he was attached to Battery H, Fifth United States Artillery, which company participated in the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, Murfreesboro, and at Chickamauga on the 19th of September, 1863, at which battle he lost his left leg by a cannon ball, which ball killed both of the wheel horses attached to the cannon. He lay on the ground as the rebel infantry charged over him, and could hear the commands of their officers at the time, and had the presence of mind to pull the cord from his hat, and used his revolver to twist it around the stump of his leg so as to check the flow of blood. This done, he received another wound—a gun shot in his right hip; in this condition he lay upon the ground until the battle was over; was taken a prisoner, and exchanged shortly afterward. He worked in the quartermaster's department in Washington City until the war closed. In the fall of 1867 he was made superintendent of a national cemetery at Staunton, Va., and was transferred from there to Camp Nelson National Cemetery in Jessamine County. In June, 1883, was transferred to Mound City, Ill., and remained there for five months, when he resigned his position. In 1885 he made a visit to Germany, Saxony, to see his aged mother. Dear Sally:

Here is the Geneology of the Espey Family of Tolono, Illinois. You already have the Creamer Geneology so this should complete the information.

It is probable, but not proven, that the Espey name (with its variations) came from Tuscany. There was a Rudolph Espee living in Normandy in 1180, and there was a record of a John de Espy living in England in 1272. People by this name had also long lived in Germany. Some of the "Espy" family were French Hugenots and moved directly to Ireland.

The meaning of the name is somewhat confused so that you can take your choice of one of the following:

1. In Old German, the word for spy was "Speha".
2. In Old French, the word for spy was "Espie".
3. One educated Scotchman insists that Espie means "Bishop".
4. Another possibility is that it means "Swordsman".

Some of the variations in the spelling are: Aspy, Aspai, Aspie, Asby, Espie, Espey, Esby, Esbie and Easpy.

You will note that the Espey spelling is here called a variation. The original spelling of our name is Espy. It was changed to Espey for some unknown reason about 1775, as can be seen on the chart.

The immediate ancestors of our Espey family are Scotch who came to the Scottish Plantation of Down-Antrim in Ireland from Scotland as early as 1610. This is the time that religious persecution was greatest in Scotland.

The geneology covers 12 generations, counting your children as the 12th. The time period covered is from approximately 1600 to 1980, or about 380 years.

My grandmother often spoke of Ripley, Ohio so it was natural that I stop there while on a vacation in 1938. I still have my notes taken during my visit to Cora Yeaten. I remember sitting in the living room and hearing her say that the covering on the sofa was knit by an ancestor of mine. There was a large beautiful grandfather clock there. She told me that a certain ancestor bought this in Pittsburgh and brought it on a flat-boat to Ripley.

The cemetery across the street is where many of the Espey family are buried.

The old log cabins used for drying tobacco were especially interesting to me. I only wish that I had taken pictures.

I again visited the Espey home in Ripley in 1973. I found little changed since my 1938 visit. The road in front was now a busier and better road, but the house was in good repair and not used as a residence. Some sort of commercial service company seemed to use it for storage. The well in back was unchanged.

You spoke of Espey or Espy families living near you. Your father also told me of visiting some old graveyards near you. If you will send me names and dates of birth and death, and any other information, I would like to go to the Newberry Library and see if I can find more information for you.

If you are discussing this with someone by the name of Espey or Espy, please have them give the names and dates of their ancestors. Perhaps you can do it from the attached chart.

You will note that some of the family lived in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania for a while. Since this is near you, there certainly must be family members in your area.

This has been a lot of fun for me, Sally. I hope that you get enjoyment from it also.

Sincerely,

Harold G. Creamer

Dear Joyce:

My sister Margaret sent me your letter and I was glad to get it. I think that you had in mind that I lived in the Urbana area. Highland Park is 25 miles north of Chicago on the lake.

I somehow got started on the Espey geneology in about 1936 or 1938. I collected information but never put it in order until just recently. My action was the result of a direct request by Sally Williamson Cordes. This is Espey's daughter.

It is a coincident that your letter came almost to the day that I finished the work and had it ready for mailing.

I am enclosing a copy of an old picture that I have that is really a part of the Creamer geneology. However, your father and grandparents are in the picture so you should enjoy it.

I am also sending to you two small pencil sheets telling of your grandmother's death. This came to me from my grandfather and was no doubt the facts written for the newspaper in 1917 when she died.

Your grandparents lived on the road we had to take to go to town. I remember stopping in to see them on many occasions. I also remember the time of her death. Her body was taken to my grandparents' home in Tolono and I believe that the funeral was held there.

It is also of interest that your grandfather also came from Ripley Ohio. I do not know if he came at the same time that the Espey's did.

I think that the information will be complete but if you have any question I will try and get an answer for you. We are fortunate to be close to the Newberry Library in Chicago which with the Library of Congress, ~~are~~ is supposed to be one of the two outstanding geneology libraries in the country.

As you will gather the picture of the "Old Home Place" is where I was born and lived until I graduated from the U. of Ill. And Will is my father — the one with the bicycle.

I am sorry I did not have all the information on you, your husband & children so that I could have included them.

You can refer to the chart to see who the Peterman's were.

I never knew you as you were younger but as I remember you were about Margaret or Jean's age. Hope I get to see you some time.

I have been retired about 8 years and enjoy very good health. I play tennis regularly the year around which isn't bad at my age. I keep real busy doing many things. Life has been real good to me. I have the most wonderful wife in the world which helps. (not the wife shown on the chart).

He removed in 1769 to the "Wyoming settlement," and settled upon the west bank of the North Branch of the Susquehanna river, about one mile above the mouth of Fishing creek, where he built a log house, surrounded by a stockade, which was known as McClure's Fort. He was a member of the Committee of Safety during the Revolution, and a man of prominence during that illustrious era. Of his children we have little knowledge. One of his daughters became the wife of the somewhat famous Major Moses Van Campen. A son, James McClure, who died upon the old homestead on October 4, 1850, was the youngest child, and the first one of white parents born in that section of Pennsylvania.

VIII. GEORGE ESPY,[4] (Josiah,[3] George,[2] Josiah,[1]) b. 1749, in Hanover township, Lancaster, now Dauphin, county, Pa.; d. April, 1814, in Luzerne county, Pa. His father, in March, 1775, conveyed to him a tract of land granted him by the Proprietaries in then Northumberland county, Pa., to which he moved the same year. The tract of land was situated not far from the present borough of Nanticoke, upon which he built a log house. He was commissioned May 31, 1800, a justice of the peace for the district consisting of the townships of Hanover and Wilkes-Barré, which office he held at the time of his death; was a mason by trade, and built by contract the old stone jail which was situated on East Market street, Wilkes-Barré. George Espy married MARY STEWART, who died about the year 1820, daughter of John Stewart. They had issue, among others:

i. Ann, b. April 5, 1777; m. Ambrose Tilly; d. in Hanover, Luzerne county, s. p.

THE GRAVE-YARD.

Originally Paxtang congregation owned a tract of twenty acres in the shape of a parallelogram, whose length was about three times its width. About 1850 a portion of the tract was sold leaving a square of six or eight acres, covered largely with forest trees, among which are several giant oaks. Near the center of this tract stands the church, the parsonage occupies the south-east corner, and between the two lies the grave-yard. In early times no distinct limits were set to the burying ground, and the people buried their dead anywhere, according to their fancy, in the clearing to the south and south-east of the church. Graves were seldom marked, and a few have obliterated all trace of them. As families became permanent and the number of these graves increased, more care was taken, tombstones began to be erected and lots fenced in. The want of uniformity, however, in these fences and of regularity in the selection of lots rendered the ground very unsightly. This state of affairs existed until 1790-1792, when the ground was enclosed by a stone wall, the greater portion of which is still standing. This wall does not by any means include all the graves of Paxtang. It did, however, surround all that were marked by tombstones or protected by fences. An effort has been made in the pages immediately following to give a correct copy of these tombstones, and brief notes of many of those who lie beneath the sacred soil of venerable Paxtang.

CHAPTER LXXIV.

SADSBURY TOWNSHIP.

SADSBURY was the first settled and the earliest organized township in Lancaster County. Prior to the erection of this county it was a part of Sadsbury, Chester Co., and included the present townships of Bart and Eden. As now constituted, it is bounded on the north by the townships of Paradise and Salisbury, on the southeast by Chester County, and on the southwest by Bart and Colerain townships. The surface of the township is rolling, and the soil is fertile and well adapted to agriculture, which is the chief pursuit of the inhabitants. It is well watered by the numerous tributaries of the Octorara Creek, which flow across it toward the west. On these streams numerous saw-mills were erected at an early period. Many of these have gone to decay since the country has become denuded of the forest growth which the original settlers found here. A fulling-mill was built near where the town of Christiana now is, about the year 1775, by Calvin Cooper, who, it is said, brought the machinery from England. From the earliest settlement of the country till near the middle of the present century nearly all the cloth worn by the people in the rural districts was of domestic manufacture; and fulling-mills, within reasonable distances of each other, were almost indispensable. The spinning-wheel and the loom are now no longer, as of old, portions of the furniture of every house; and the wool-carding and cloth-dressing mills have gone out of existence because their "occupation's gone." Grist-mills, that soon superseded the primitive mortar in which corn was converted into meal, did not disappear, but increased in number and capacity as the forest was cleared away and the area of arable land grew larger. Moore's, Sterrett's, and Taylor's grist-mills were erected soon after the organization of the county.

According to old deeds, the portion of Sadsbury lying south from Gap Ridge was called Penn's Manor of Springtown, while that to the northward of the Gap, including the Pequea Valley, belonged to his Manor of Conestoga, in Chester County.

It is believed that John Kemmerly located the first land taken up in Sadsbury township, and probably it was the first in Lancaster County. This was in 1691, and afterward William Penn located directly south from the Gap a tract of one thousand acres, which included the old Shawnee village, and which is still known as the William Penn tract. At the same time his surveyor, Isaac Taylor, located a tract near Nobleville, and William Clayton, an ex-member of Penn's Council of State, took up another tract adjoining the old Sadsbury meeting-house property. Thomas Story, a member of Penn's Council, and James Logan, his Secretary of State, also located large tracts in the Pequea Valley, northward from the Gap. These locations were made in 1700. The tract of one thousand and fifty acres, on a part of which Christiana stands, was taken up as "servants' land" under warrants issued in 1702 was surveyed in 1709. The title-deed

The original settlers of the township were Friends and Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. Both had left their native countries because their religious sentiments were not in accord with those of the prevailing sect there, and, as usual in such cases, their difference of opinion in religious matters engendered bad feeling between them as citizens. The Quakers were averse to war, while the Scotch-Irish were active, and even aggressive, in the maintenance of their rights, and in their dealings with the Indians, and subsequently in the war of the Revolution, these differences of opinion led to bitter animosities, which were long remembered.

During the period that intervened between the Indian wars and the war of the Revolution several companies of emigrants from Sadsbury and adjoining townships went to what is now Guilford County, N. C., and since the development of the region west from the Mississippi, many from this region have gone thither.

Of the early settlers whose families were represented in the township of Sadsbury from half a century to a century since, the names are remembered of the Coopers, Moores, Pownalls, Williamses, Longheads, Sprouls, Irvins, Heards, Morgans, Borlands, Millers, Brookses, Smiths, Chamberlins, Slokoms, Kennards, Brintons, Walkers, Musgraves, Rockeys, Townsends, Thompsons, Whistons, McGowans.

The following lists gleaned from various sources include most of these names, as well as many others.

From old wills of people in Sadsbury it appears that Nathan Reid, who died in 1739, left one son, Thomas.

lexander Work, 1749, left Hannah, a son Henry, tha, Elizabeth, James, John.

obert Bailey, 1798 (aged ninety), left Francis,
b, Lydia, Elizabeth, Abigail, Janet.

OH-16/PA-16 -- The Land Records for Clermont Co., OH show a transaction for William Kirkpatrick where he bought 50 acres on 30AU1820. By 1828 William and Martha K. had sold this land probably in anticipation of a move to Illinois. By 1830, William and family were listed in the Edgar Co., IL census. The following children were born in OH:

Katherine, b 27FE1816 or 27FE1818, d 18FE1905MO, m Henry Harrison Sprague 08JA1835IL.
William, Jr., b 02AP1820, d 21SE1909MO, m Nancy Mitchell 27JY1843IL.
Martha, b 12MY1822, d 08MY1856, m John Garrett 03JE1842IA.
Mary, b 1825, m David Daniels 08JA1843IA.

William Kirkpatrick was born 1784-1794PA and it is believed that he is listed as head-of-household in the 1810 census of Cherry Tree Twp., Venango Co., PA with (00100)(William) and (00001)(relative ?). He m Martha Hays in 1816 and they had 3 more children after the move to Edgar Co., IL: Nancy Jane, Margaret Jane, & Robert Finley. Ellen K. Davison reports that a record was found in the obituary of Margaret Jane that she was the last of a family of 10 children. Seven are listed here.

OH-17/PA-3 -- James Kirkpatrick, b 15SE1826PA, d 06JY1902IA and in 1849 he moved from PA to OH. James m Sarah Henderson 19AU1826PA. 1852 She d 27AP1853 after bearing one child, Ralph. James and son Ralph moved to Linn Co., IA in 1856.

His parents, John and Margaret (Martin) Kirkpatrick, natives of IRE, moved to America ca 1820 and settled in Franklin Co., PA where they spent the rest of their lives. OH-18/PA-20 -- James Kirkpatrick, b 1770IRE, and came to Lancaster Co., PA at an early date. In 1813 he moved to Steubenville Twp., Jefferson Co., OH. He may have married in IRE as the census show a William as b 1798IRE. He then m Sarah _______ and they had James Jr., b 01JA1820OH and possibly John, b 1813OH. The family then moved to Island Creek Twp. in 1830.

James Jr. moved to Salem Twp. in 1859, and to Ross Twp. in 1872. James, Jr. m Ann(e) Crawford ca 1848 and they had seven children: Homer, b 1849; John, b 1850; James; Edward, b 1857; Emma; Anna; & Sadie. James Jr. m a 2nd time to Mary J. OH-19/KY-6/PA -- According to History of McLean Co., IL, James Kirkpatrick was born in PA and subsequently moved to KY (no verification has been found for the birth in PA). He m Anna Shelp 10MY1803 in Bourbon Co., KY. and apparently shortly thereafter moved over to Adams Co., now Brown Co., OH, as the History says, "their nearest neighbor in Brown Co. could not be reached in a day's travel." A son of James and Anna (Shelp), Thomas M., says that he was born on 31AU1811 in Brown Co., OH. In the early Ohio tax records there is a James kirkpatrick in Brown Co., OH for 1819. WRK believed that the James K. in Eagle Twp., Brown Co., OH census for 1820 might be the father of Thomas M. K. The census record, see page 60, shows: m: 1<10; 1, 26-45 and f: 2<10; 1, 26-45 with 1 in Ag. Children other than Thomas M. are not known at this time. Apparently Thomas M. moved on to Indiana where he married and then subsequently to McLean Co., IL in 1852 and a few years later to Sangamon Cos., IL.

The record on this family is confusing as there was another James Kirkpatrick in the same region of KY who m Ann Gilmer 1806. The available data on these two families are reviewed on pages 24-27 of this KNL.

OH-20/PA-27 -- Alexander Kirkpatrick lived in Northamption Co., PA. in 1767 and may have owned land in Hunterdon Co., NJ at an earlier date. Some of the descendants spelled the surname, Kilpatrick. John L. Shawver reported on an Alexander Kirkpatrick, b 1744, claimed brother of James of NJ-4, in his booklet, Kirkpatrick Family Genealogy, 1930, p 85-89.

An unusual aspect of this family file is the apparent late marriages of the sons John (1.1) and Alexander (1.2). In 1767, Alexander K. (1.0) deeded to Alexander K (1.2) 250 acres in lower Mt Bethel Twp., Northampton Co., PA. Thirty-three years later, after the Revolutionary War, and after Alexander K. (1.0) died, both John K. (1.1) and Alexander K. are listed in the 1800 census with wives. John K. (1.1) then died in 1800, after the census, and left a widow, Rachel. Alexander K. (1.2) lived until 1826 when he died leaving a widow, Susannah, and 7 children. Alexander K. (1.2) may also have owned land and/or resided in adjacent Hunterdon Co., NJ according to a deed transaction in 1809. This should be considered a preliminary file, based upon quite limited data, and additional research is needed.

Photocopies of a Kirkpatrick file (13 pages) were obtained from a library, (Easton Public Library, Sixth and Church Streets, Easton, PA, 18042, (215) 258-2917). The research was carried out in 1964 by Helen P. Alleman (address RFD 1-104, Washington, NJ, in 1964). Six of the 13 pages, of the report on her research, covers an Alexander Kirkpatrick family, which has been reduced to a decimal file, see previous page.

Family tradition is that Adam was the son of Samuel K. and as mentioned above there was a Samuel K. in Bourbon Co., KY in the 1800 tax list, however, there is no Samuel in early Adams Co., OH tax lists. There is a Samuel K. in the 1814 voters list for Wayne Twp., Adams Co., OH, which suggests that Samuel may have been living with Adam or other relative. There was an Andrew & Elizabeth K. living nearby on a branch of Brush Creek in Adams Co., OH, probably OH-1/MD-1, see indent., p 51. Also a Thomas K. is a proposed brother of Samuel. OH-23/KY -- In 1800, Joseph Kirkpatrick was living in Ross Co, created in 1798 as part of the District Northwest of the Ohio River, and he purchased land, 58 3/4 acres, in Bourbon Co., KY (deed book E, p 412). A short time later and still before OH statehood, 1803, Joseph and wife, Ann, sold the same land and apparently decided to stay in OH as we find them in later records. It's not clear that this Joseph was ever a resident of KY but he surely must have visited KY before his 1800 land purchase. In the 1810 tax records for Ross Co., OH we find Joseph Sr. and Joseph Jr. as well as John, Samuel and William K.

It was reported previously, KNL, v. VII, p 16, that in 1957 an OH researcher, Anna M. Barrett of Chillicothe, OH, had this Joseph K. in her line. She appeared to have confused her Joseph K. with the Major Joseph K. of the KY-13 line though she recognized that there was another Joseph K. in Bourbon Co., KY who was in the KY-4 line. In a letter to the Kentucky Historical Society, Anna said that her Joseph died in 1823, intestate, in Ross Co., OH. This may agree with the 1820 census for Ross Co., OH as there is only one Joseph K. as a head of household in 1820, though we do not have the census details for this county (father living with son ?). By the 1830 census of Ross Co., OH the Joseph K. has disappeared though the John, age 50-60, and William, age 40-50, both in Chillicothe, were still there. Also there was a Ruth K. as WEIR head of household in Union Twp., Ross Co., OH in 1830 and nearby a much younger Samuel K. Ruth might be the widow of Joseph Jr. K. (or of Samuel K.) with the following census data: m 1, 20-30 and f 1, 15-20; 1, 60-70.

There is support for a John K., b 1771PA from 1850 census, in Chillicothe in the History of Scioto Valley Ohio. The History reports that John and Nancy/AGNES (Johnston) Kirkpatrick were from PA where they grew to maturity and were married and then came to Chillicothe in 1795. They removed to a farm 3 miles south of Chillicothe in 1804 where they lived until 1825 and then moved back to Chillicothe and lived there for the remainder of their days. Children were: Julia A., (this must be Margaret A.) b 31AU1801 and Mary, b before 1801. The 1820 census for the household of John in Chillicothe shows: m 2, 5-10; 1, 20-30; 1, 50-60 and f 1, 10-15; 1, 40-50. Margaret A. (K.) McAdow was the oldest resident of Chillicothe in 1900 when she died at the age of 99.

The William K., b 1783PA, m Mary, he a cabinetmaker, also noted in the 1810 tax list and in the 1820, 1830, 1840, 1850 U.S. census records, is likely a brother of John K. b 1771PA. William and Mary K. had children: Joseph, b 1811OH, a cabinetmaker; William T., b 1822OH, a baker; Mary, b 1834OH; William, b 1842; and Isabella, b 1844. These birth dates from 1850 census.

From an obituary for Margaret Ann (Kirkpatrick) McAdow in the Chillicothe paper for 1900, the children of her parents John and Nancy (Agnes ?) (Johnston) K. are given as: (3 2 children un-named and died before 1900) Mary/Polly + Benj

KIRKPATRICKS IN AMERICA BEFORE 1800
CODED OHIO FAMILIES

OH-10/PA-24 -- Robert Kirkpatrick, b 26MY1806, d 28FE1881OH identified his parents as James & Marion (Wells) Kirkpatrick and said they had eight children and lived near Dumfries, Scotland where he was born. This tradition appeared in a short biography of Robert K. which was published in the 1880 History of Delaware Co., OH (Robert d 1881). However, at an earlier date, 15JE1842 a Robert Kirkpatrick appeared before the common pleas court in Delaware Co., OH and was granted American citizenship. The naturalization papers list this person as a native of Ireland (Robert was literate so probably not an error).

From the 1880 biography, we learn that about 1826 Robert sailed to New Brunswick, Canada where he lived for 16 months. He then moved to Philadelphia, PA where he spent about six years and married Esther Wood, 27DE1832. The following year, in MY1833, Esther and Robert moved to Liberty Twp., Delaware Co., OH (near Columbus, OH) where he started farming. They had eight children (all b OH with dates b as recorded in a bible): James, b 04OC1833; John, b 24FE1835; Marion, b 29OC1838; Thomas, b 20NO1840; Robert M., b 25MY1843; Mary E. b 09JA1849; Joseph,b 06JE 1851; & Andrew. (Robert's history prior to his leaving Philadelphia has not been verified.)

OH-12/PA-5/NJ-1 - Many descendants of the NJ-1 line from the immigrant, Andrew Kil/Kirkpatrick, dates of b & d unkn, went to OH. Andrew had a possible brother, Alexander, b ___, d 03JE1758, and his descendants remained in the east.

Alexander (3), John (2), Andrew (1) -- This Alexander is believed to be the son of Capt. John Kirkpatrick, b ca 1739NJ, d 17AP1822NJ. Family papers show Alexander as b 26OC1764 in Morris Co., NJ, the region of NJ where Capt. John lived (Sussex & Warren Cos.). Alexander K. m Sarah Mitchell, 10NO1787, and their children were: Andrew, b 1789, d 1865; Abigail, b 1791, d 1879; Clarissa, b 1794, d yng.; Rachael, b 1795; Sarah, b 1798; Jane, b 1800, Alex, b 1803; Clarissa, b 1806; Nathaniel, b 1808; & Hannah, b 1815. The 1790 census of PA shows an Alex. Kirkpatrick in Washington Co., PA with 1-1-2 which is in reasonable agreement with the above children, i.e. Andrew, b 1789. There is no apparent census record for Alexander K. in either PA or OH after the 1790 entry. From the Harris family history we find that Alexander and Sarah were in Knox Co., OH until 1839 when they removed to AR. The move to AR is confirmed by an 1840 census entry which shows Sarah Kirkpatrick with 1 M 70/80, 1 F 20/30, & 1 F 70/80, also son, Nathaniel, and family are in the 1840 census for Pulaski Co., AR.

Andrew (4), Alexander (3), John (2), Andrew (1) -- Andrew, son of the above Alexander, was b 1789 in Washington Co., PA. He m Ann Lafevre, b 1789PA, and they moved to Champaign Co., OH, then to LaSalle Co., IL and finally to Union Co., IL. Children (13) were (all believed born OH but would require cking census records, such as 1850 to verify): John, b 09MR1812; Nathaniel, b 30JE1813; Cornwall, b 23DE1814OH, d 30MR1890IL, the potter of Anna, IL; Alexander A., b 23NO1816, d 25MR1852; Sarah Ann, b 1817, d 1819; William, b 1819, d 1829; Andrew, b 04FE1821, d 03NO1853; Sarah Ann, b 07OC1823, d 06JE1850;

Murray, b 08DE1824; Edwin R., b 13JE1826, d 26AP1846; Mary Jane, b 15AP1828; Wallace, 23SE1829; & Joseph, b 1832, d 1836. (There is an Andrew K. in the 1810 census for Washington Co., PA, however, the listing shows 1 M>45 and 1 F>45 so not Andrew, b 1789.)

Andrew (3), John (2), Andrew (1) -- This Andrew, son of Capt. John Kirkpatrick, b ca 1761NJ, d FE1814OH, m Phoebe Read and removed to Ohio in 1806. Their first child was Martha, b 1791NJ, d 1882OH, m Amos Williams. This is the Martha K. Williams who recited to John L. Shawver and Robert Stewart the early history of the NJ-1 family in America (KNL, v. VII, p 79). Martha and Amos had nine children and the sixth was Sarah, who m Elias Shawver. A son of Sarah (Williams) and Elias Shawver was John L. Shawver, editor of The American Register(TAR)(KNL, v. VII, pp 77-79). The other children of Andrew, b ca 1761, and Phoebe (Read) Kirkpatrick were(these children also b NJ & went to OH, except Joseph, b OH): Sarah, b 1793; Elizabeth, b 1796; John, b 1798; Azuba, b 1800; David, b 1803; Amos, d yng.; Joseph, b 1807.

xxxxx (3), John (2), Andrew (1) -- Of the ten children of John and Lydia (Lewis) Kirkpatrick which are listed in TAR, only the line of Andrew and Phoebe (Read) K. (to OH in 1806) is developed extensively in TAR. The tax records, page 22, show a group in Guernsey Co., OH, consisting of Alex, Andrew, David, Thos., Thomas & possibly John, which we believe to be the Code NJ-1 family members. WRK showed that David moved over (ca 1835) to Hardin Co., OH, and David & Nancy & family are listed in the 1850 OH Census. WRK also found that David went to to IA ca 1855 where he remained and d.

The family history for NJ-1 has not been updated/revised for sixty years, except for some work on the line of Alexander K., m Sarah Mitchell.

OH-3 -- Robert Kirkpatrick was born in County Down, Ireland. He came to OH shortly after 1800 and bought extensive landholdings in Mahoning Co., OH, from the Western Reserve sales agent of the Connecticut Land Co. He first built a cabin in 1807 in Jackson Twp., and in 1818 had a contractor build him a substantial 5 room brick house which was still in use in 1920. He married Catherine Ewing, daughter of one of his pioneer neighbors, about 1805, and he died 22NO1847OH.

They had five children: Martin, b 01FE1808, d 11JE1863, m Margaret Taylor; Isaac, b 1811, m Eliza McAnlis; Joshiah, b 01MR1813, m Belinda Dunlap; Martha, b 1815, m James McGeorge; & Eleanor, b 1817, m John Wilson. Kilpatrick is in the 1800 tax list for Fleming Co., KY. By the 1810 KY census, Samuel was a widower with 6 boys and 2 girls as Martha died between the birth of son, Alexander, 21OC1808, and the 1810 census (31101-21000). Samuel and family moved to Brown Co., OH about 1819 and listed in the 1820 census is a Samuel Kirkpatrick in Brown Co., OH that matches Samuel and his sons but has the possible addition of a second wife and an older woman.

Family tradition is that Samuel came to America from North Ireland. He spelled his name as both Kilpatrick and Kirkpatrick until about 1815 when he settled on Kirkpatrick. This dual spelling is confirmed by the land application of John K. based upon his War of 1812 service. An affidavit, filed by his brother James, in support of John's bounty land claim describes the dual spelling (see p 100 this issue).

The above information was provided by John R. Kirk, of New York City, who is in the line from Andrew, who married Elizabeth Baldwin, sister of Phebe. John says that family tradition was that the father immigrated from Scotland and the mother was an "Irishwoman." About 1815 some members of the family shortened their last name to KIRK (including the line of John R.)

There has been some confusion between this line, OH-8, and the NJ-1 line because of similarity of given names, in particular Andrew and Thomas. Back in 1981, Michael Cassady (6215 67th Court, Riverdale, MD 20737) attempted to determine the names of the mother and father using resources in the Washington, DC area (DAR Library, Archives, Library of Congress etc.). While he did not find the names of the parents, he was able to show that the two brothers, Andrew and Thomas, who m Baldwin sisters, are not the two sons, Andrew and Thomas, of Capt. John K. of the NJ-1 family (see the book Capt. John Kirkpatrick of New Jersey, 1927, by William C. Armstrong, p 9). Also, Andrew, b ca 1722, & Margaret (Gaston) Kirkpatrick have been proposed as the parents of Andrew and Thomas of OH-8 even though there is no Thomas or Andrew in the list of their children (see p 35 of the Capt. John K. book).

As a further bit of confusion, both the OH-8 line and the NJ-1 line (p 35 of the Capt. John K. book) show a Sarah Kirkpatrick, b 1765, d 1838, m Daniel Johnston, and indicates that they moved to Washington Co., PA. For example, see Harriet May Tucker DAR application #89238, approved NO1911 (this connection was based upon a Johnston Genealogy in the possession of Mrs. Elizabeth Dunlap of Washington, PA, DAR #27565). KA member, Eleanor Burt, says that she recognizes two names (from the Capt. John K. book) as land owners in the Long Cane setlement of Abbeville Co., SC. A James Johnston, whose land adjoined Andrew K. land (SC-7), and whose son Daniel Johnston married Sarah Kirkpatrick, b 1765; and a Joseph McMartin a son-in-law of Andrew K. of NJ-1. We know that the OH-8 family members, Andrew and Thomas went west, but did the NJ-1 family of Andrew K. go south ? Much attention has been directed to the NJ-1 line through the articles in TAR (and the lack of information on the other K. lines).

Children (9) of Andrew and Elizabeth (Baldwin) Kirkpatrick were (all b OH & * = surname changed to Kirk): John*, b 15FE1805, d 27JA1891IL, m Susan Bingham, 10MY1827; Rayen*, b 1808, d 1893(IL?), m Mary Ursula Gray, ca 1827; Thomas, b 1810, m Charlotte Hunter; Betsey, b 1812, m Dutton Jacobs; Mary, b 1814, m Dr. Robert H. LISTING OF CODED OHIO FAMILIES 07SE1996

OH-1/MD-1 -- Descendants of William, b ca 1723SCO. Family tradition says he came from Londonderry ca 1755 and settled in MD. Again, family tradition has his three sons fighting in the Revolutionary War and one, Robert, died at the Battle of Brandywine. Son Andrew migrated into OH and William went from Monongolia Co., VA (now WV) to Springhaill Twp., Fayette Co., PA. Descendants migrated to other western states such as IN, IA, AR, TX, and east to FL. See KNL, v. IV, p 10 re MD-1 & KNL, v. VII, pp 92-93 re OH-1.

OH-2/PA-25/MD-2 -- Apparently this family was originally in MD but changes in the MD/PA boundary put them in Chester Co., PA. Likely are closely related to the MD-7 family that went to NC and then to KY (KY-5) Hugh, b ca 1735, in MD/PA had sons James and Hugh who migrated thru Washington Co., PA to Knox and Harrison Cos., OH. Following generations went on to IA & NE.

OH-3 -- Robert, b IRE, and his descendants who settled in the area of Youngstown, OH and extensively intermarried with the Ewings. Some members shortened the name to KIRK. No connection to the OH-8 family, also in the Youngstown, OH area is known.

Cane Brake to Corn-Patch: The Founding of Washington, KY

The first cabin in Washington is thought to have been built by a Virginia adventurer, Johnathan Higgs, in 1775, one full decade before the town was laid out. On the edge of a cane thicket at the east end of what is now York Street, Higgs, one of a party of 10, made his "improvement" and tomahawk claim, but apparently never returned to settle.

In 1776, known as "the year of the common man," the Virginia Legislature legalized the "cornpatch and cabin" right of title that encouraged settlers to open up the wilderness beyond the Blue Ridge by offering them 400 acres of free land if they built a cabin, planted a patch of corn and registered their claim by January 1, 1779.

So down the Ohio the flatboats began to arrive; thence up the meanders of Cabin Creek, Limestone Creek, Lee's Creek, Locust Creek and Lawrence's Creek, group after group of land speculators, locators and pilots, agents for land companies, all came to make their claims. Most importantly of all, however, were those settlers and their families grasping the opportunity to establish a new life on the Can-tuc-kee frontier.

COUPLE OF MILES WEST OF AUGUSTA, KY.

Many of the new arrivals pushed their way across the mountains, some through the Cumberland "gap" and then inland to the North Fork of the Licking River, and staked their claims along its banks and up its tributaries. Thus were dozens of cabins and their accompanying "crip of corn" springing up along the Mill Creek, Lee's Creek on the Licking, Clark's Run, the Shannon Run, Strode's Run, Well's Creek and many lesser known streams and drains. Others who took advantage of the "cornpatch and cabin" right to title in or around Washington were William Beckley, John Tebbs, and Angus Cameron. Records show that these lands were surveyed for the above claimants.

Certificates of title were issued at St. Asaph's (where Stanford now stands), through the approval of four appointed commissioners: William Fleming, Edmund Lyne, James Barbour and James Steptoe. Applicants were charged 10 shillings per 100 acres of land, plus 10 shillings for the clerk. "Cornpatch and cabin" or settlement claims were often accompanied by an additional pre-emption for 1,000 acres to the applicant who could prove settlement for at least one year. Two other methods for entitling property were by purchasing land warrants from the Governor of Virginia or by securing a military warrant. Both methods were used extensively.

About the time Higgs erected his cabin, Simon Kenton and Thomas Williams landed at the mouth of Limestone Creek. When they pushed to the interior they found the most luxuriant canebrakes, ranging in height from six to fifteen feet. They cleared an acre of land in the center, near a large spring about a mile and a half from the present site of Washington, and planted the first corn cultivated by white men North of the Kentucky River. In 1784 Kenton was back at the same site and erected his station, on the hill overlooking the same spring.

Among the first pioneers were William Wood, a Baptist minister, and Arthur Fox, a young surveyor, both from Virginia. They bought Medford's Station, ca. 1787, was moved to Washington in 1969 and reconstructed on the site where a log cabin had stood until the mid-1900's. Medford built the cabin using planks from the flatboat that carried his family down the Ohio River from Pittsburgh.

from Simon Kenton, in 1785, a seven-hundred-acre tract of cane land and laid out the town of Washington. By the following year, more than fifty log houses had been built, clearing a path through the tall cane and enough space for a log cabin. Wood and Fox were ambitious to establish a county as well as the town. So they petitioned the Virginia Assembly to establish the newly settled village of Washington into a town. They felt the prestige of the official "establishment" by the Virginia Assembly would be an advantage in forming a new county of which it would be the seat of government.

Indians were a constant threat. In the late fall of 1785 Thomas Talmage, a young man of about 17, who resided at Lee's Station which had been built that summer, was shot and scalped by the Indians while hunting near the North Fork. They left him for dead, but he revived and is said to have crawled nearly two miles to Lee's Station. His mother, Mrs. Abraham LeForgy, nursed him back to health, but he never remembered anything of his life before this ordeal. He did live a good many years and later managed a salt-making industry at Upper Blue Licks which was started by his step-father and Silas Dexter.

The spring of 1786 brought no surcease from Indian raids. Nearly all the horses around Limestone were stolen, and in May, Hezekiah Wood and Lot

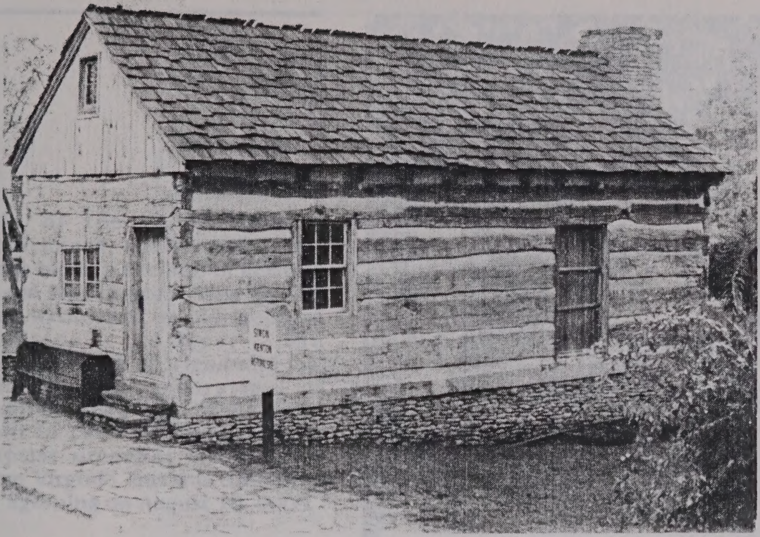
The Cane Brake Visitors Center is one of the original 119 Washington log cabins of 1790. Owned by the Kentucky Department of Parks, it is leased to Old Washington, Inc. and open daily 11-4.



On the Simon Kenton Historic Site still stands the original 1790 cabin in which Simon Kenton operated his trading store. Now a museum, it is maintained by Old Washington, Inc. ,along with a small park with picnic tables, soft drinks, and restrooms.

Masters were murdered while on their way to Kenton's Station to hear William Wood preach. In November 1786, the Indians were back at Kenton's Station where they killed William McGinis, one of the signers to establish Washington. He had moved only a few days before to his cabin just outside the fort at Kenton's Station.

The residents of Washington became alarmed and felt they stood little chance of making it to Kenton's Station in case of an Indian attack. In the winter of 1786 they erected a small stockade in the center of the Washington settlement. In case of alarm so sudden that Kenton's Station could not be reached, the inhabitants could retreat to the block house in the town. It would afford them temporary protection, while runners could be sent to Kenton's Station and Lee's Station for reinforcements.

The citizens of Washington and the surrounding area continued to petition the Virginia Assembly to establish a county. Somehow they felt that having the seat of government closer to home would make it easier to organize effective resistance to the Indian raids. In 1788, after the third petition was filed, and in spite of the usual protests of the past, Mason County became the 8th county. formed from the original Kentucky County. Named for George Mason,

The original Washington Post Office, built in 1794, was located north of town center near "C" Street. In 1800, it was enlarged, a second story was added, and it was covered with clapboard. In 1977, it was relocated into the log cabin above, at the corner of Jail Alley. Next to it sits the log and brick Washington Branch Bank, operated by the Bank of May's Lick.

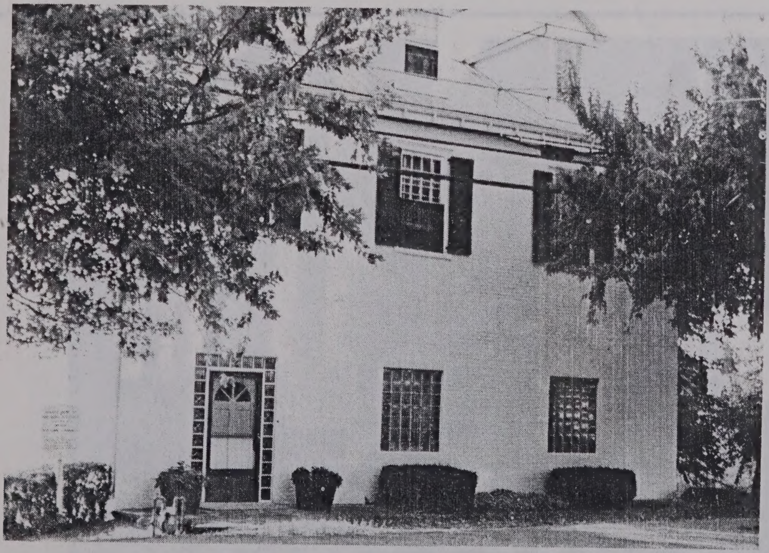
This house was built in 1807 by Colonel Marshall Key, a grandson of Colonel Thomas Marshall and his wife Mary Keith Marshall. Elizabeth Key was taught by Harriet Beecher (Stowe) at Lane Academy in Cincinnati. In the summer of 1833, Miss Beecher visited her pupil in Washington where she witnessed a slave auction on the block in front of the Courthouse, an experience later reflected in Uncle Tom's Cabin, the novel that stirred the anti-slavery sentiment and in part caused the Civil War.



The First Branch Bank in Northern Kentucky opened here in 1809. In 1835, the bank moved to Maysville and later reorganized as the Bank of Maysville, the oldest bank in Kentucky. Judith and Peyton Key then converted the old bank into a residence.

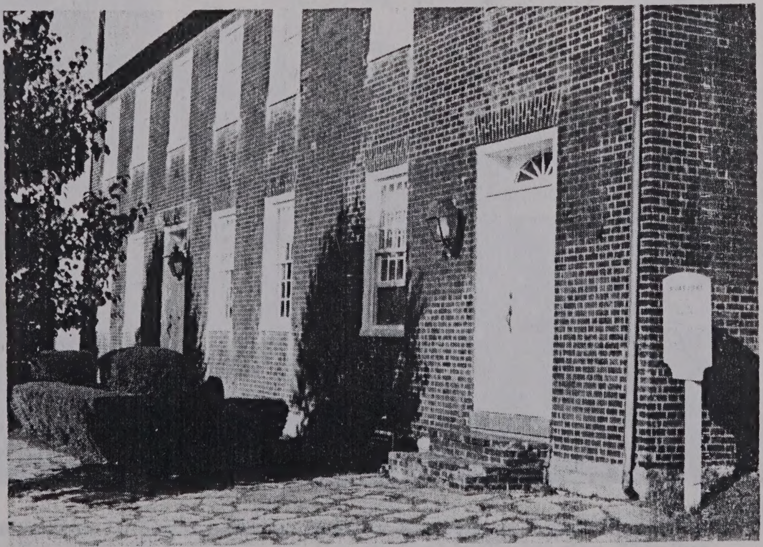
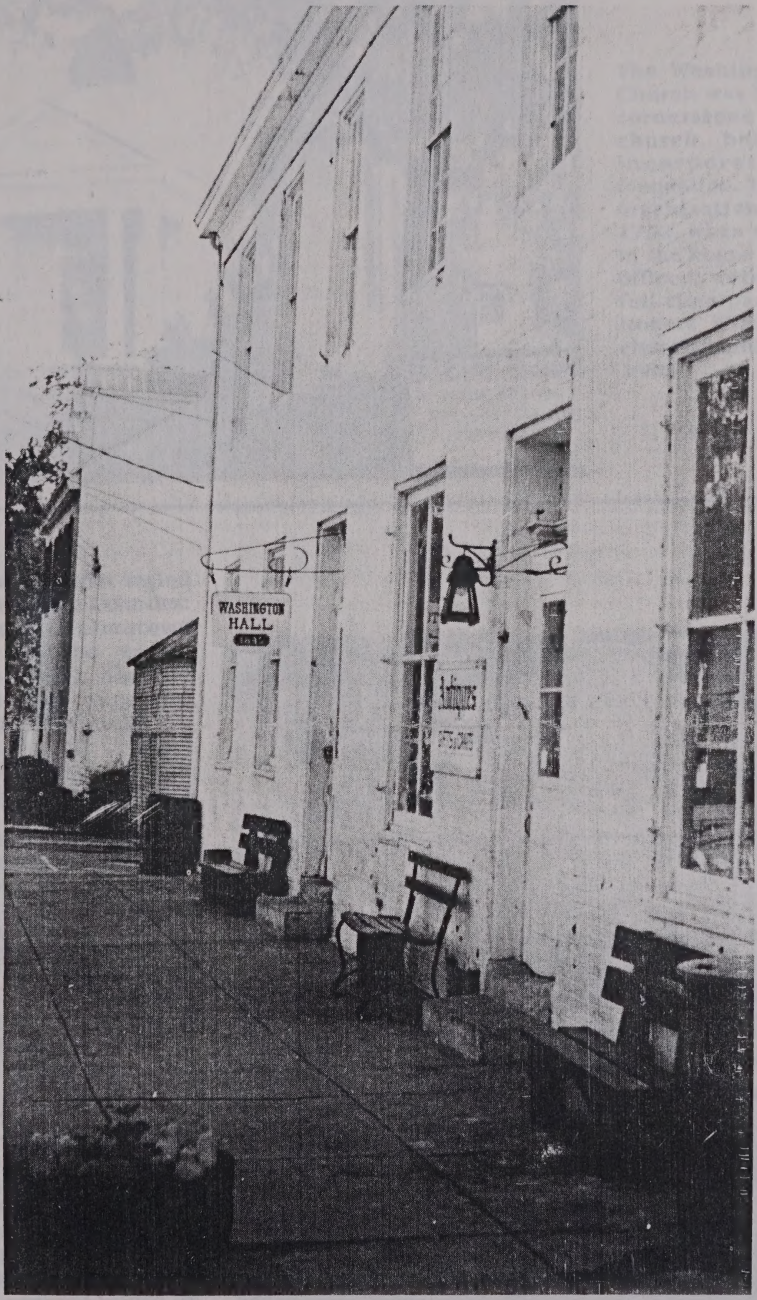
Pillsbury School, also known as the 1812 House, was alma mater to many prominent Washington citizens. Mann Butler, who wrote a history of Kentucky, was one of the distinguished teachers. It now contains a museum display of antiques and collectibles operated by Phyllis and David Helphenstine. Tours are conducted.



The Taylor-Morris House, ca. 1830, was originally built as a house and store by Ezekial and Dolly Forman for their daughter Elizabeth and her new husband, Robert Taylor.



Washington Hall was built in 1845 in hopes that a hotel near the Courthouse would help keep the County Seat in Washington. This fine hotel, complete with ballroom and elegant drawing rooms, failed in its purpose when the County Seat was indeed moved to Maysville in 1848. It now houses a variety of shops, selling such items as antiques, homemade crafts, gifts, and home-baked pastries.

Miss Evangeline Edwards
2327 Rosemont Place W.
Seattle, Wash. 98199

Dear Cousin Evangeline,

I am writing to you at the suggestion of Lucy Fall, Middletown, Ohio.

I address you as cousin because I believe we are third cousins with our common ancestors being our great-great grandparents, Izatus Howland and Sarah (Robe) Howland. If my research and information is correct, our descent from Izatus is as follows:

	Izatus Howland (b. 1793 - d. 1860)
bros.	John Robe Howland (1818-1896)	William Howland (1816-1875)
1st cous.	Caroline (Howland) Edwards (1843-1877)	John Izatus Howland (1854-1937)
2nd "	Orange Edwards (? - ?)	Marion John Howland (1895-1971)
3rd "	Evangeline Edwards (? - ?)	Robert E. Howland (1923-)

As a personal bicentennial project, I started out trying to identify and locate as many descendants of John Howland (our great-great-great grandfather) as I can. I chose this John Howland (1755-1841) because he was a Revolutionary War patriot and the first of our direct Howland line to leave Mass. and move west.

The information I am seeking on each descendant includes (1) full name, (2) date and place of birth (3) marriages, date place and name of spouse, (4) date and place of death and (5) names of all children.

I am well documented on our Howland ancestors prior to Izatus, all the way back to Henry Howland who came to Plymouth in 1621. Henry was a brother of John Howland who came on the Mayflower in 1620.

I am enclosing a family group sheet on your great grandfather's family to show you the type of information I am seeking. If you can fill in any blanks or see any errors on this chart, I would appreciate it.

I know very little about the John B. Edwards - Caroline Howland Edwards family except that there were at least five sons i.e. Charlie, William, John, Orange and Darius. Anything that you can tell me about this family and their descendants will be appreciated.

If you do not have any of this information but know of someone else who does, I would like to have their names and addresses. If you by any chance know of anyone else who is doing research on the Howland line I would also like to get in touch with them. I have accumulated considerable Howland information over the years and am more than happy to exchange with anyone interested in the Howland line.

I am enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for your use in replying and hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely yours,

Bob Howland

Rosanna Baird Howland.

Rosannna Baird was born April 11, 1839, and died at her home in Ripley, November 20, 1915, aged 76 years, 7 months and 9 days. She was the daughter of John and Mary Fenton Baird, whose home was near Russellville. She was the fourth child of a family of eight children, and the last of them all to depart, her brother, John, having gone only a few months ago. She was married to John Howland, May 12, 1870. To them one daughter, Flora Dell, was born. She died November 16, 1885. Her husband died April 15, 1896. They united with the church at Liberty Chapel, Byrd township, about the year 1875. They were loyal, consistent christians. He served the church as elder, faithfully and efficiently, for many years. Mrs. Howland's health began to fail several years ago, and for two and one-half years she has been almost helpless, requiring the constant attention of a nurse. Since the death of her husband, and especially since her sickness, she has been carefully looked after, and tenderly ministered to by her step son, W. S. Howland, and his family. At one time she said, "I have heard of step-relations, but have never known what it means," and they all have the same feeling of love toward her and will cherish precious memories of "Grandma." She had many nieces and nephews, some of whom she had cheered and helped in times of mourning and lonliness, who loved to come and minister to her comfort, and by whom the memories of "Aunt Rosanna" will be lovingly cherished.

Saturday evening, Mrs. Rosanna Howland passed to the great beyond to join the loved ones gone before. For a few years she had been a helpless invalid, but was always patient, always cheerful, and thoroughly enjoyed the visits of her large circle of friends who, in turn, found pleasure in her company. Mrs. Howland was seventy-six years old, and was the daughter of John Baird and wife, who were prominent residents of the Russellville neighborhood. She was the widow of John Howland, who was so well known and highly respected all over this section of the country. A number of years ago, after the death of their bright little girl, Mr. and Mrs. Howland moved from one of their farms to Ripley and soon purchased the handsome Ridgeway home on Main street, where she still resided after the death of her husband. W. I. Howland, a son of Mr. Howland by a former marriage, and his wife were tireless in their devotion to Mrs. Howland and they and their children have given her unbounded attention and love. OBITUARY.

Another of our pioneer land mark has been removed. Elder J. R. Howland was born August 25, 1818; died April 15, 1896, being 77 years, 7 months and 20 days of age. He had lived all his life in the vicinity of Liberty Chapel, at which place he took membership with the body of Christ about the year 1875. From that time forward, and until God took him home, he maintained an honorable standing in the church, serving it most of the time as an Elder. He was married in 1836 to Miss Sarah Wright. There were born of this union four children, only one of which survives, Mrs. Mary J. Pickerill. In 1851 he was married the second time to Louisa B. Robe. There were born of this union three children, Wm. I. Howland being the only one surviving. His third marriage in 1870 was to Rozania Baird. Of this union was born one child which is dead also. Mr. Howland, like most of our pioneers, started in life comparatively empty handed, but by earnest toil, frugal habits, and careful husbanding of all business interests, he succeeded in amassing quite a goodly portion of this world's goods. He was a liberal supporter of the church and a charitable man. As a citizen was quiet and unassuming, thus becoming an exemplary man. His companion has lost a devoted husband; his two remaining children a loving and indulgent father; the church a faithful and zealous supporter; the public at large a benefactor. Father Howland was in good health up to the time of his

Aim

Our aim when we began to compile this history was to trace the ancestors of William Izatus Howland. We were fortunate enough to locate information on several other close branches of the family which we are including for your interest.

Method of Presentation

To ease the difficult at best task of keeping each succeeding generation straight, we are using the following method of numbering: Since the earliest ancestor in the Howland family is Henry Howland, we have assigned him the letter A; his children A1, A2, A3, etc. If there are more than nine children in a family, the tenth is designated by (10), the eleventh (11), etc. The children of A1 are numbered A11, A12, A13, etc. For example: A13(10)6 is the sixth child of the fifth generation (count one generation for each number); his parent on the Howland side is the 10th child in his family; grandparent, the third child; great-grandparent, the first child of Henry Howland, designated A. For clarity, we have treated the Henry family the same way preceding the earliest known Henry ancestor with the letter H.

We have traced up to 14 generations of Howlands in America in our line from Henry Howland and the corresponding number assigned is difficult to read. Since we have not begun to branch out until the Mary Jane Howland Pickerell - William Izatus Howland generation (9th), we have inserted a diagonal line (/) for ease in reading the latter generations.

The apparent inconsistency in the spelling of names is due to the use of the spelling as found in various records - Bible, census, vital statistics, county records, etc. Such often vary within the same record, as in deeds.

An asterisk indicates a direct descendant or ancestor as the case may be.

HOWLANDS IN ENGLAND

Information obtained from "The Howland Quarterly," 1968, published by the Pilgrim John Howland Society, indicates that Henry Howland of Fenstanton, England, is the father of John and Henry Howland who were pilgrims to America. All who came to Plymouth, Massachusetts, before 1630 are called Pilgrims. John Howland came on the Mayflower in 1620 and his brothers Henry and Arthur came on the Fortune in 1621 or the Ann in 1623. Our branch of the Howland family is descended from Henry Howland.

Fenstanton, England, lies nine miles north of Cambridge on the Roman Road that goes through Godmanchester and Huntingdon and joins the road to York about ten miles north of Huntingdon just south of Alconbury where there is a big USAF base. It is said that the village is Roman in origin; the Saxons abandoned the Roman settlements and built their villages a mile or so off the main road.

Henry Howland, yeoman[1], died at Fenstanton, 17 May 1635 and his wife, Margaret, was buried at Fenstanton 31 July 1629.

Children:

1. Arthur, yeoman, settled in Marshfield, Plymouth Colony, (Massachusetts), and buried 30 Oct. 1675. He joined the Society of Friends.
2. John, yeoman, passenger on Mayflower to Plymouth, 1620, and died in Plymouth, 23 Feb. 1672 "over eighty." He married Elizabeth Tilley, a passenger on the Mayflower. He was active in the First Church of Plymouth.
3. Margaret, m. 26 April 1623 at Fenstanton, to Richard Phillips, a shoemaker.
4. Humphrey, draper[2] in London and buried at St. Swithin's Parish, 9 July 1646. He m. (1) Margaret Calvert 21 Nov. 1622 and m. (2) Ann (Mary) of Barking, County Essex.
5. George, merchant, of St. Dunstan's Parish in East London. He died 10 Feb 1643/4.
6. Simon, bapt. 19 Aug. 1604 at Fenstanton. He moved to London.

*7. Henry, came to Plymouth and died 17 Jan. 1671 at Duxbury, (Massachusetts). He became a member of the Society of Friends.

JOHN HOWLAND
1592-1673

The first mention of the name of Howland which has been found is in the roll of Edward III, about 1360, where "Monsire Richard de Howland" is stated to have "borne sable[1], a lion rampant, argent[2], within an orle[3] of escallope shells of the second." Probably he lived in County Essex, and was a collateral ancestor of John Howland of the Mayflower; "de" the Norman title of nobility having been later dropped from the name.

The Right Rev. Richard Howland, D.D. (1540-1600), was born at Newport Pond, County Essex, graduated from Cambridge University, and afterwards, in 1576, became Master[4] of Magdalen College. In 1584 he was consecrated Bishop of Peterborough. During his episcopate, Mary, Queen of Scots, was executed and buried in Peterborough Cathedral. Bishop Howland was present at the execution, but did not preach the funeral sermon. He was a kinsman of John Howland, but the degree of relationship has not been established. To him was confirmed (q584) the arms borne by the Howlands in America since the 18th century: argent, two bars gules[5] (sometimes sable), in chief three lions rampant of the second; crest: a leopard[6] passant gorged with a ducal coronet, or[7].

John Howland was the son of Henry Howland of Fen Stanton, County Huntingdon, (not far from Newport Pond, County Essex.) This is shown from the records of the Draper's Co. of London to which Humphrey Howland, John's brother belonged.

In 1620 John Howland sailed on the Mayflower as a member of John Carver's family. He fell overboard during a storm in the mid-Atlantic, and was saved from death by catching hold of a halyard which was trailing behind the ship in the water, and being pulled back on board by the aid of a boathook. Governor Bradford writes about this incident, referring to John Howland as a "lustie younge man," and states "and though he was something ill with it, yet he lived many years after, and became a profitable member both in church and commonwealth."

On November 11, the Mayflower anchored in Cape Cod Harbor. There John Howland became the 13th signer of the famous Compact. He was one of the "ten principal men" (including his future wife's father and uncle, John and Edward Tilley) who were in the third exploring party (December 6th) and took part in the first encounter with the Indians who attacked them on Eastham's beach.

The first winter in Plymouth was one of terrible hardship for the Pilgrims and there were many deaths. John Carver, the first governor, died in the spring of 1621 and Katherine his wife, died soon afterwards, and it is thought that John Howland, whose excellent constitution had carried him through, inherited the Governor's estate.

In 1626 John Howland was one of "ye cheefe of ye place," along with Bradford, Brewster, Standish and others, who assumed on behalf of the whole colony the debt owed to the Merchant Adventures - eighteen hundred pounds. This was a heavy burden, but was eventually discharged by them. In 1630, with Edward Winslow and John Alden, he was appointed as an alternate to Myles Standish who was the attorney for the Warwick Patent, sent over by the Council for New England. During 1633-35, he was an assistant or member of the Governor's Council (he was doubtlessly and assistant before this, but the records are not available), and from 1641 he was frequently a deputy or representative to the General Court.

During 1634 John Howland was in command of the Pilgrim's Kennebec Trading Post, when a certain Hocking, who had no right to be there, was shot and killed by one of Howland's men. It was decided that John Howland had done his duty and he was exonerated.

John Howland married Elizabeth Tilley who had come in the Mayflower as a girl of fourteen. Her parents had died the first winter and she had become the foster daughter of Governor Carver and his wife who were childless. Elizabeth and John had ten children, all of whom lived and had descendants. Their four sons were officers of the Plymouth Colony Militia, and served in other capacities.

John Howland died on the 23rd of February 1673, and was "with honor interred." This was accorded only to the leaders of the Colony, and meant that a squad of soldiers fired a volley over his grave. He is described in the records as a "godly man and an ancient professor in the ways of Christ."

The above information was obtained through Mrs. Ruby Howland Paeltz of Russellville, Ohio, youngest child of W. I. Howland.

In "Pedigrees of the Families of Howland of Essex County, England, and of Plymouth, Mass.," Joseph L. Chester states that an English genealogist in 1879 mentions "the extraordinary fact that I find the surname of Howland in no other county in England than Essex, and originally in no other locality in that county except at Newport and Wicken and their immediate vicinity. Whereever at later periods I have found Howland in other counties, as Hertfordshire, Surrey, Berks, etc., I have invariably traced them back to Newport and Wicken. It is clear that several families of the name were living there contemporaneously and equally so that they were all in some way connected . . . at the period of the birth of John Howland of the Mayflower, there were living then no less than five Howlands . . ."

Henry Howland came to Plymouth, Massachusetts, either on the Fortune in 1621 or the Ann in 1623. He married Mary Newland and both lived and died at home in Duxbury, Mass. Duxbury was also the home of John Alden and Miles Standish. A monument of Miles Standish has been erected in Duxbury. Henry Howland was made a freeman at Duxbury in 1633, chosen constable in 1635 and bought land there in 1640. He was a grantee of Bridgewater, Mass., in 1645. In 1652 he was among the original purchasers of Dartmouth, Mass., and one of the 27 purchasers of what is now Freetown, Mass., in 1659. In 1657 he joined the Society of Friends and on this account suffered persecution.

Henry's brother Arthur, whose home was in Marshfield, Mass., was also fined many times for permitting Quaker meetings in his home.

John was the first Howland family to Brown Co., Ohio, with his wife Marcy (Massie). They and their heirs are proved by a Brown Co. CR, Book 6, page 43, at April term of court, 1842, when Ichabod Howland sued the other heirs of John Howland, deceased.

John Howland first settled in Mason Co., Kentucky, some time between 1800 and 1815, according to census and marriage records; then moved across the Ohio River on Eagle Creek to become one of Brown County's earliest settlers.

Soon after their marriage in 1874, William Izatus Howland and his wife Serelda moved to Decatur, Brown Co., O. They lived on a farm just outside of Decatur for approximately 25 years and the records show that all of their 8 children - 4 boys and 4 girls - were born during this period.

In 1899 when their youngest daughter, Ruby, was just two years old, they purchased a larger farm located approximately 5 miles north of Ripley, O. They both resided at this home until their respective deaths. They were considered very prosperous and successful farmers, raising many acres of wheat and tobacco each year. They were highly respected by their neighbors and very active in community affairs throughout the area, members of the Liberty Chapel Church of Christ, and politically affiliated with the Republican party. They were one of the first owners of a new automobile in the area and their favorite car was the 'Reo Flying Cloud' which was considered a luxury car in those days. Actually a couple of these old Reo cars were still stored in the barns at the time of their deaths.

After the death of Mr. Howland and a short time before the death of Mrs. Howland, their daughter Mabel and her husband Earl Wilson purchased the home place. They both lived there until their deaths and their oldest son, Russell Wilson, and his family are the current residents. Much of the old house and barns still stand; however, certain repairs and modernization has been made over the years.

"The Ohio Valley Manor" a convelescent home has been constructed on a part of the land previously a section of the home place.

The father of William Izatus Howland, John Robe Howland, lived in a large and beautiful home which is now in the city limits of Ripley, Ohio.

(See Appendix, pg. 59, for a copy of the 55th wedding anniversary announcement of W. I. and Serelda Howland.)

APPENDIX

Extracts from "Early Records of Bristol County, Memoirs of Gen. Ebenezer W. Peirce" (of Freetown, Mass.), taken from the early probate records of Bristol County, Mass., with notes from the registry of deed and town records.

"1687, August 8th -- Letters of Administration were granted to Samuel Howland, upon the estate of his brother John Howland, deceased.

"(Samuel, John and Zoeth, were sons of Henry Howland, of Duxbury, said Henry being one of the 26 original proprietors of Freetown. Henry Howland died in 1670, and Mary his wife died June 16, 1674. Zoeth had a son Nathaniel, who divided his grandfather's lot (the 6th in Freetown) with uncle Samuel, Feb. 13, 1687. In this division Samuel Howland also received 32 acres of land in Swansea. Nathaniel Howland, of Dartmouth, in consideration of 60 pounds, sold Henry Brightman, of Portsmouth, R. I., half a freeman's share in Freetown, and half a freeman's share in the meadows at Sippacan, December 8, 1691....)"

Ancestors and Family of Serelda Henry Howland
(see pg. 28 - A2124572/6)

The parents of the Henry brothers, John C., and James, Sr., were natives of Ireland who immigrated to the United States and settled in Pennsylvania subsequently moving and settling in Union Township, Brown Co., Ohio.

There is a possibility that John G. Henry, a Revolutionary War soldier living in Stark Co., O., in 1833 (age 75) was the father of John and James Henry. He is listed in Pennsylvania soldiers who lived in Ohio. Possible second wife named Carr.

The Henrys moved to Union Township and in 1828 came to Jefferson Township, settled on a farm of 110 acres. Mr. Henry's life was devoted to farming, reading, and studying law. His services as an attorney were often in demand in the local trials of this and adjoining townships.

Obituary of Sarah Robe Howland
Widow of Izatis Howland
(A212457 - pg. 12)

"Mrs. Sarah Robe Howland was born May 22, 1790, and died August 27, 1888, in the 99th year of her age.

"Her funeral was attended by a multitude of friends and relatives. The Rev. Mr. Gossard conducted the exercises, aided by Rev. Edmonson and Rev. West. The latter, Rev. West, who had been acquainted with Mother Howland for a period of some 50 years, paid a tribute to her memory. He said she was economical, peaceable, of few words and these tender and appropriate, highly esteemed and of spotless reputation.

"She was a member of the Presbyterian church at Decatur, but a frequent attendant upon the church at Russellville and its Sabbath school, where she was a member of Mrs. Mitchell's class.

"Her great age is suggestive of many reflections. She was born only one year and twenty-two days subsequent to the inauguration of George Washington, as first President of the United States. Her one life has thus, within less than 18 months, composed the whole government history of our country.

"Liberty had been declared and achieved, a constitution adopted, a president elected and inaugurated just before the era of her birth. Since that time 22 Presidents have occupied the White House and fulfilled the duties of the Chief Executive of the nation. Of these 4 were elected to the Vice Presidency and were elected to the Presidental office by the death of 4 presidents.

"Of these twenty two all are dead but Hon. R. B. Hayes and the present incumbant, his excellency Grover Cleveland.

"Twenty Presidents of the United States have fulfilled the duties of their high office and died during the period in which an infant child became an aged woman, a small people became a great nation, occupying a chief place among the nations of the earth.

"From our comparative insignificance we have become famous both in war and in peace. The advance we have made in commerce, civilization, literature and in the means of transportation and intercommunication, by land and by water, by steam and electricity, are a wonder to ourselves and a wonder to the world. Our newspapers, our schools, colleges and universities, and our churches have become a marvel.

"In one war our rights upon the sea were maintained and in another our principals as to human rights were extended to the negro and four million slaves were emancipated.

"Missionary operations have been organized and prosecuted, so that tens of millions are expended annually to subdue the world to Christ.

"No pen can portray, no eye witness and no imagination can conceive the progress in every direction which has been made in the United States during the life time of Mrs. Howland.

"Ninety-eight years is but a brief period for a nation to live; but it is long for a human-being to abide in the flesh.

"With the advancing years of Mrs. Howland, the eye lost its luster, the bones became brittle, the muscles flaccid and the limbs tottering. Her mind wavered in its determinations, and even the warm affections of her heart became chilled. The decline of body, mind and affections were apparent to those around her and were the harbenger and prophecy of the speedy disolution of soul and body.

"A period which brings a body to the grave brings a nation up to the maturity of its strength. We say the woman is dead but the nation is dead. Her existence here was but a preparation for the glory, honor and immortality of the heavenly world. She will there live when not only our country will cease to exist, but when the world itself will be destroyed. She will live with all her powers fresh and vigorous to see 'the heavens pass away with a great noise, the elements melt with fervent heat, and the earth all that is therein burned up, and a new heaven and a new earth formed wherein righteousness shall dwell. She will live while Christ lives and because he lives.'

W.M."

Obituary of Rosanna Baird Howland
Widow of John Robe Howland
(A2124572 - pg. 14)

"Rosanna Baird was born April 11, 1839, and died at her home in Ripley, November 20, 1915, aged 76 years, 7 months and 9 days. She was the daughter of John and Mary Fenton Baird, whose home was near Russellville. She was the fourth child of a family of eight children, and the last of them all to depart, her brother, John, having gone only a few months ago. She was married to John Howland, May 12, 1870. To them one daughter, Flora Dell, was born. She died November 16, 1885. Her husband died April 15, 1896. They united with the church at Liberty Chapel, Byrd township, about the year 1875. They were loyal, consistent christians. He served the church as elder, faithfully and efficiently, for many years. Mrs. Howland's health began to fail several years ago, and for two and one-half years she has been almost helpless, requiring the constant attention of a nurse. Since the death of her husband, she has been carefully looked after, and tenderly ministered to by her step son, W. I. Howland, and his family. At one time she said, 'I have heard of step-relations, but have never known what it means,' and they all have the same feeling of love toward her and will cherish precious memories of 'Grandma.' She had many nieces and nephews, some of whom she had cheered and helped in times of mourning and lonliness, who loved to come and minister to her comfort, and by whom the memories of 'Aunt Rosanna' will be lovingly cherished. Not the loss of her one dear child, nor the death of her husband, nor severe bodily affliction, embittered her soul, as sometimes happens. She was able to say, 'I surrender all,' and to be so patient and so cheerful that often when we went to her to give comfort and cheer, we came away the ones who were helped."

Obituary of Flora Dell Howland
Daughter of John Robe Howland
(A2124572(10) - pg. 14)

"IN MEMORIAM"

"Flora Dell Howland, whose death was noticed in our last message, was born Dec. 31st, 1872. She was the only child of J. R. and Rosanna Howland. Naturally possessed of a delicate constitution, she had no promise of a long life, although receiving every care and comfort that could be bestowed by fond parents, who sincerely hoped that their little daughter might be restored to more perfect health, and might be spared to comfort them in their declining years. A few days prior to her death, which mayseem so premature, she contracted that dread and fatal disease, scarlet fever, and all efforts to relieve or restore her seemed futile. Monday evening, after the most intense agony, surrounded by sad friends, she peacefully expired, passing from the struggles of life to the shores of mortality. Some of the circumstances of her sickness and death were peculiarly sad. Owing to the contagious nature of her complaint, her little associates and friends, and she appeared to have had many, could not with prudence and safety be permitted to visit her in sickness, or view the lifeless form. She was a regular attendant at the day school and faithful at the Sabbath School, receiving all of the benefits of a liberal education. A few months since, Mr. H., wife and daughter made an extended tour, as many will remember, among their numerous friends and relatives in the distant West, and doubtless when the message containing the sad tidings be transmitted, many hearts will be saddened at the death of little Dell. While the dark clouds of gloom and despair may hang heavily over the household, the family have the assurance evidently of the most profound sympathy. The funeral discourse, by Rev. J. S. West, at the residence, Wednesday forenoon, was exceedingly applicable, and a lengthy cortege attended the remains to the interment in the West grave-yard. A number of floral tributes designed by loving friends adorned the beautiful casket. As expressive of their high appreciation and just regard, Mr. and Mrs. H. desire to publicly express their thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who so much aided and sympathized with them during their late sore trial and affliction.

"Dearest daughter thou has been taken;
(Y)et thy loss we deep deplore;
(And we) know 'twas God that called thee,
(Upo)n the golden shore.

"Dearest daughter thou has been taken,
From pain and sickness to be free;
You have crossed Death's chilling waters,
To a home prepared for thee."

Obituary of Caroline Pickerill Thompson
Daughter of Mary Jane Howland Pickerill
(A2124572/23 - pg. 18)

"Caroline Pickerill Thompson was born November 2, 1865, and died May 23, 1927, aged 61 years, 6 months and 21 days. She was the daughter of S. W. and Mary Jane Pickerill; in the family were seven children, only two of which are living -- Mrs. O. A. West, of Russellville, Ohio, and Hoadley Pickerill, of Winchester, Ohio.

"In early girlhood she united with the Liberty Christian church, to which all her family belonged, and every one who knew her disposition and makeup, know well enough that she was not just a member of the church, but contributed in every way she could to help the church do its full work. We know she walked in that path until the end came.

"She was married at the age of 18 years to A. Y. Thompson, a neighbor, whom she had always known. This was a happy union and remained so until his death, September 7, 1907, which left her a widow. Can you realize what that word widow means. It means that a link has been taken out of the chain of life, and loneliness and sadness comes; it cannot be otherwise where two have enjoyed the happiness of companionship together. She remained on her farm for a time and then went back to her father and mother's home to look after them in their declining years. She remained there until her mother's death, and until 1919, when she moved to Russellville, Ohio, where she lived until the end came. The persons who have known her all her life, and who associated with her in her girlhood days, and also those who have known her only of later years, will agree that she was a woman of a bright and cheerful personality. No one could be in her company long without having some of the sadness of life taken away because of that cheerful and happy disposition.

"In her late sickness she was resigned to the will of her Master, although hoping against hope that she might be restored. But like her Savior, she was ready to say, "if it be possible, let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not my will, but Thine O Lord, be done."

"She was a member of the Eastern Star, of Russellville, Ohio, and also of Byrd Chapter, D. A. R., Decatur, Ohio."

Information obtained from Mrs. Mary West Liggett, Ripley, Ohio.

"50th ANNIVERSARY OF LIBERTY CHAPEL"

"Celebrated by Descendants of Founders and Their Friends"

"August 7, 1924, the membership and friends of the church worshiping at Liberty Chapel, met to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the completion of the present house of worship. The dedication occurred December 13, 1874. This time was chosen instead of December 13, because it would be possible for more friends and relatives from a distance to be present.

"The exercises of the day began with a very excellent dinner served in the spacious barn on the farm, of Mr. John Paeltz, near the church. Here relatives and friends and brethern met, visited, talked over old times, met new friends and yes, new relatives and looked into the future.

"For about 125 years, almost from the time of the first settlement, God has been worshipped in this neighborhood. J. S. West who was minister at the time of the dedication, and continued so until his death in 1892 delivered the sermon. In this sermon he said, 'Ere the howl of the wolf, and the scream of the panther ceased to be heard by night, the primitive inhabitants were wont to meet here for prayer and praise.'

"The first religion taught in the neighborhood, was that of the Shakers. They met at first in groves and private homes. After some five or six years of their peculiar practices and forms of worship, they, because of their members moving away, ceased to exist as a religious body.

"The coming of Samuel Pickrell into the neighborhood wrought a change in the religious life of the community. In the sermon, J. S. West, after giving an account of the Shakers -- the religious condition and searchings of truth during a number of years -- said, 'I have no means at hand to determine who constituted the first church, if its records are preserved, I know not who has them. We knew some members of the Gardner, Devore, Pickrell, Ramey, Ristine, Hatfield, Hughes, Fisher, Reeves and Longly family's were members.

"The old stone church under the hill was completed in 1817. Quoting again from the sermon, 'Upon the comple(tion and remem)berig the religious bondage from which they had escaped devoted it to religious freedom and christened it "Liberty," and, to this day, no man giving evidence of honesty of purpose, has ever been prevented from here freely expressing what he understood the Word of God to teach.'

'Eternity only can disclose the influence for good this building has had upon the community.'

"After the change in the location of the road, made the attending of the old stone church inconvenient, the present building was erected. It was dedicated 50 years ago.

"William M. Pittenger and James Jones, who had worked with Joseph Gaylel, during the building of the church were present.

"The test of that occasion was Heb. 12:1, 'Wherefore seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race set before us ever looking to Jesus, the Author and finisher of our faith.

"Near the close of the sermon, he makes application of the text including among the witnesses, 'our fathers and mothers in the church and in the flesh who have died in the faith and now look down from their celestial heights upon us, descerning our success.

"O, brethern, let us imitate the example of these worthies, let us, from this blessed moment lay aside every weight that hinders and run in the Masters service. If we are but faithful, great is our reward in heaven.'

"How fitting it would have been to have a sermon from the same text on this anniversary, reciting important church events in the last fifty years and calling to mind the many dearly loved faithful witnesses, who have gone on, and exhorting us to RUN and become worthy to join the great and ever increasing host of witnesses.

"After dinner, the company retired to the church where services were held. James B. Wilson, ably presided. The Decatur orchestra rendered sweet music. The congregation sang "How firm a foundation." Earl Howland, of Georgetown, led in prayer. O. A. West made a short pithy welcome address.

"John T. Pickrell, of Muncie, Ind., read from the church records items of board meeting recorded by R. P. Fisher.

"Miss Susannah West of Maysville, Ky., sang sweetly, "Will the Circle by Unbroken."

"Miss Louie West read a sermon delivered by her father at the dedication. Miss Lucy West read a letter from U. B. Dampier, a former minister. Short, interesting talks were made by Rev. Strop, of Sardinia, Rev. Donohoo, of Hamersville and Rev. Griffin, a former minister.

"For years on this occasion at Liberty the Howland quartet has rendered beautiful songs. All regretted, that owing to the inability to be present, of two of their members, C. M. Howland of Portsmouth, and Mrs. Forrest Paeltz, of Russellville, not to hear them at this meeting.

"The congregation sang, "Blest be the Tie" and A. S. Carr made the closing prayer.

"Thus ended a day of sweet fellowship, of retrospection, introspection, and looking into the future.

"The past fifty years this church has steadily gone on witnessing for Christ in this community.

"May she during the next fifty-years still hold the banner aloft and do more and better work for the cause of the Master.

It was the good fortune of the writer to see four of the sons of William and Hannah Pangburn together and to hear them recount the experiences of their youth. These were: John, William, Lines, and Samuel. John lying helpless in bed with rheumatism forgot for the time his aches and pains and joined in the cheerful conversation. They were all men of large frame, stalwart and powerful, and, with the exception of John, pious Christian men.

Samuel, the subject of this short memoir, was noted for uncommon energy in his work and business affairs, and as a consequence accumulated much property. For many years he extensively engaged in the cooperage business, as well as farming and milling, besides making occasional trips to New Orleans with flatboats of provisions. His home life was unusually happy, and he was devoted to his wife and children. As before noted he

BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE WALL AND APPLEGATE FAMILIES; THEIR CONNECTION WITH THE PANGBURNS OF THIS RECORD.

THAT portion of Allegheny County, Pa., lying between the Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers, formerly known as the "Forks" or "Forks of the Yough," has the distinction of being not only one of the earliest settlements, but was also for many years the most populous section of Western Pennsylvania.

While it is true no settlements could be legally made here until the spring of 1769, still the fact remains that several years before that time many hardy adventurers had come here, and had built their cabins in the unbroken forest, there biding the time which they knew would soon come when the Indian would again give up his rights to another great territory to his white brother.

In course of time this became "Old Elizabeth Township" of Allegheny County, now subdivided into the townships of Lincoln, Elizabeth, and Forward.

Among the early settlers of the present Forward Township were quite a number of families from New Jersey, who commenced to come here as early as 1766; in a few years they formed quite a community made up of kindred, neighbors and friends, principally from Monmouth and Middlesex Counties. Of these were the Walls, Applegates, Storers, Pierces, Ketchams, Imlays, Pangburns, and others. This was known as the "Jersey Settlement," a name that is still more or less familiar to the people of the present day.

Of course their young people married; but as a usual thing the young man in seeking a wife went no further than to the home of his next neighbor, with the result of many snarls of relationship for the genealogist to untangle. However, it is only intended here, to show very briefly the line of descent, and the connection of some of these people in later years with the Pangburn family, as noted in this record.

WALL FAMILY.

The Wall family was represented in the Jersey Settlement by two brothers, Walter and James, whom the records show came here as early as 1766.

Their ancestry is traced to Walter Wall the emigrant, who came to America from near London, England, in 1643. He with a number of others settled on Long Island where they founded the town of Gravesend, and where they remained some twenty years or more. About 1665 he and a number of his townsmen came to East Jersey where they purchased from the proprietors a large body of land, embracing a part of the present counties of Monmouth and Middlesex.

Walter Wall was a man of prominence in this community. It is noted that this colony fairly and honorably

WALL FAMILY.

The Wall family was represented in the Jersey Settlement by two brothers, Walter and James, whom the records show came here as early as 1768.

Their ancestry is traced to Walter Wall the emigrant, who came to America from near London, England, in 1643. He with a number of others settled on Long Island where they founded the town of Gravesend, and where they remained some twenty years or more. About 1663 he and a number of his townsmen came to East Jersey where they purchased from the proprietors a large body of land, embracing a part of the present counties of Monmouth and Middlesex.

Walter Wall was a man of prominence in this community. It is noted that the colony fairly and honorably purchased from the Indians these lands, each settler paying his proportion.

Garret Wall, one of the sons of Walter, is also prominently mentioned in the records of Middletown and Shrewsbury (Freehold). He and his wife were members of the Baptist church at Middletown, said to have been the first Baptist society in New Jersey.

The brothers, Walter and James, who came to western Pennsylvania were great grandsons of the emigrant Walter Wall, and sons of James Wall and his wife Hannah Storer, who lived and died in Monmouth County, New Jersey.

I have underlined in red my line.
I did a lot of work back in the 40's when not as much was required.
Hope you can follow this - it is not easy!
There is much more. When I find what you have then I'll know better what to copy.
Of course, I want your line, and I hope you have all of my line that I don't have. That will be the day.

FOOTNOTES

Each claim made about your ancestor must be proven. Each proving document you submit should be identified by giving it a letter (A, B, C, etc.) and clearly writing its identifying letter on the front. DO NOT SUBMIT ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS. Copies of documents may be (1) photo or other facsimiles of the originals or (2) exact typed or hand-printed copies of the original certified as true copies by a court house official, genealogical librarian or other official. The source of each document should be indicated on the front.

Fill out the chart. In each small square (found at the end of the lines) put the number of the footnote line (below) on which you cite the documents (including their identifying letters) which prove the claim to be true. For example, suppose you claim that Jane Roe died on 7 May 1847. On a blank footnote line cite the document which shows that this is so and write the number of that footnote line in the appropriate square. (Example: ....The said Jane Roe died on 7 May 1847 at Athens County Ohio. ☐6 .... Footnote line 7. Death certificate -- document F). Add additional squares if needed.

William F. Sargent.

Friday, in the presence of a larg gathering of friends and neighbors, funeral services over the remains of the venerable William F. Sargent, whose untimely death was chronicled in the columns, were held at the family home on Shinkle Ridge, by Rev. Dr. Hench, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Oddfellows Cemetery, at Chilo. The following obituary of his life was prepared and read:

Wm. F. Sargent was born near Chilo, Clermont county, Ohio, March 16, 1828, died September 29, 1909, at the ripe old age of 81 years, 6 months and 13 days. His parents were Edward and Anna Sargent. Their family consisted of 13 children, of whom our deseased friend was the last surviving child. Mr. Sargent was married March 18, 1859, to Miss Margaret Watson, of Shinkle Ridge. They took up their residence at once and spent their entire married life at the home on Shingle Ridge, which was the parental home of Mrs. Sargent, and in which we are gathered today. Here it was their happy, good fortune to spend 50½ years of a very happy married life, perhaps one of the happiest and most congenial pair in this whole community. Both of them endowed with pure, honest and noble natures, and loving with pure hearts fervently, they were ever true to each other and found that mutual happiness in each other that God has ordained for those who are truly married in the Lord, and find themselves congenial by nature and so happily suited to each other. This happy and delightful home was blessed with the coming of five childre of whom one died in infancy and four still live—Wm. C., near Chilo, Mrs. Wm. Livingstonn, of Cincinnati, Frank, at home. and Dr. Edward E., of LeRoy, Illinois, who, with the mother, survive him. Mr. Sargent became a member of the Cedron Presbyterian church about the time of his marriage, or soon after, during the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Delamater, a minister of most blessed memory, under whose faithful ministry a very large gathering was added to the church. Mr. Sargent was afterwards made a ruling elder in the church, in which office he continued until his death. Mr. Sargent's life was quiet and unobtrusive, devoted to the quiet and laborious life of the farm. He never sought nor held public position or office. His moodest, retiring nature rather shrank from such publicity, and he was content with the quiet, peaceable life of the farmer and its happy home life. Here in this quiet and peaceable occupation, on a farm located on the top of a ridge, with a range of landscape on all sides, forming a view of almost unparalled beauty. He passed an honest, industrious and noble life, fulfilling all his duties and obligations to his God, his family and the community and his country.
